BROCKTON FIRE KILLS 12

Fireman Killed By Roof's Collapse

Death took a fearful toll today as the Strand Theater in Brockton burned itself into a shambles of desolation and destruction . . . with fire companies from a dozen cities and towns mobilized to fight the biggest fire in New England this year. The roof, loaded with snow, collapsed on a dozen firemen fighting the flames on and under the balcony of the theater, trapping and smothering the men who had no chance of escape. And, here, the body of one victim is carried to an ambulance.

F. D. TO ASK VAST SUM IN BRITISH AID

WASHINGTON, March 10 (AP)—A prompt request for funds to speed aid to Britain under the Lease-Lend program was forecast at the White House today by legislative leaders.

After conferring with President Roosevelt, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader, and Vice President Wallace, Speaker Rayburn said:

"The President probably, if the bill is signed tomorrow night, will send up some estimates. They will be for cash and contract authorization."

Rayburn said the amounts to be included were discussed with the President but the speaker could say nothing about them.

The congressional leaders said the bill, as passed by the Senate Saturday night, would be called up in the House tomorrow for final approval and sent to the White House by nightfall.

2-HOUR DEBATE LIMIT

This procedure was agreed to unanimously shortly after the House convened. It was agreed on the motion of Rep. Cooper (D.) of Tennessee, that after two hours of debate, avote would be taken tomorrow on agreeing to all Senate amendments.

Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massacvhusetts, Republican leader, announced on the floor this procedure was agreeable to him since "each amendment in my judgment helps the bill."

Stephen T. Early, Presidential secretary, told reporters he thought Mr. Roosevelt would sign the bill "sometime Wednesday, unless we hit a snag not now foreseen."

The request for the appropriations, Rayburn said, probably would be in the form of a letter from the President to him.

F. D. TO ASK 3 BILLIONS?

Informed persons considered it probable the vast supply of war materials made available to Britain by the bill would start moving across the Atlantic within a few days.

One of those who attended the White House conference told reporters Mr. Roosevelt had not decided precisely what amount of appropriations and contract authority he would request. It was said, however, the total "will be considerable."

One informed Senator declared he expected the President to request between $3,000,000,000 and $3,500,000,000 in both money and contract authority.

AID VOTE CALLED UNIT

Sen. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan told reporters that in two roll calls 89 of the 95 senators had voted for aid to Britain. That number, he said, voted either for the Administration's aid bill or the Taft substitute to lend $2,000,000,000 to Britain, Canada and Greece, or both.

The Senate action on the aid plan, Vandenberg said, thus was "a far more impressive demonstration of national unity that the final roll call might disclose."

Shortly after the House convened today a Senate messenger announced Senate passage of the bill. At the request of Rep. Cooper (D.) of Tennessee, the House rules committee was given until midnight to file reports to have possible final House action tomorrow.

CANADIAN NURSE HEROINE IN CAFE BOMBING; USES WINE ANTISEPTIC

LONDON, March 10 (AP)—A 23-year-old Canadian nurse who used tablecloths for bandages, table legs for splints and champagne for antiseptic was hailed today as the heroine of the weekend bombing of the fashionable West End Cafe de Paris, where many persons were killed and injured.

She is Nurse H. M. Stevens of Dunnville, Ont., who was in London on leave and attending a dance at the cafe when a bomb scored a direct hit.

Miss Stevens—who was unhurt—pulled herself from the wreckage and plunged into the work of succoring the dying and injured.

BELITTLES OWN HEROISM

Although she is a physio-therapist and not accustomed to handling blood wounds, she turned in a job which won praise from all sides.

"I did only what any Canadian nurse would be proud to do," she explained.

"The crash sounded like a bunch of fire crackers and stunned me for a few minutes," she related. "The whole place was filled with smoke fumes and I thought at first it was gas."

Miss Stevens' uniform was torn and the white-starched cuffs of her uniform were blood-soaked, but she still managed a smile.

ESCOR TSAVED HER

She went to the dance with a group of Canadians, including Lieut. J. D. Wright of Sarnia, Ont., who was killed; Nurse Thelma Stewart of Toronto, who suffered a hand-injury, and Lieut. J. C. Cunie, also of Sarnia.

Three other Canadians, Capt. Phil Seagram of Toronto, Sergt. R. A. Bradshaw and Corp. G. W. Quinn, were killed.

When the bomb hit, Miss Stewart and Wright were dancing but the others, not liking the song, "Oh, Johnny," then being played, sat the dance out at a balcony table.

Wright died while shielding Miss Stewart, she said.

French Navy Set to Run Britain's Food Blockade

VICHY, France, March 10 (AP)—Vice Premier Admiral Darlan informed American correspondents today French ships would be convoyed if the British blockade of France continued.

Darlan, who with Chief of State Marshal Petain and Secy. of Food Supply Achard called the press conference, declared:

"If the British continue this blockade, which I consider imbecile, I will be obliged to ask permission to provide arms and protection for our merchantmen. I will let nothing stand in the way of the French people's eating.

"The Germans are more generous and more comprehensive of the needs of humanity than the English," he continued.

Petain said the Germans had released 2,000,000 quintals (220,400 tons) of wheat of 2,700,000 requisitioned for the German army.

Darlan said he considered the blockade against Germany useless and declared he had so informed U. S. Ambassador Admiral William D. Leahy.

Achard read a statement saying 5,000,000 quintals (18,348,300 bushels) of wheat from the United States was needed for the unoccupied France.

The wheat, he continued, would go to the unoccupied zone only, to be distributed under American supervision.

"I don't want to consider what would happen if we were obliged to reduce bread rations to 200 or perhaps 150 grams (7 ounces or 5 ounces) daily," Achard said.

"My duty is to see that the French eat," Darlan repeated.

Achard said the 1940 harvest amounted to no more than 42,000,000 quintals (154,125,000 bushels) of wheat of mediocre quality against a normal harvest of 75,000,000 quintals.

The government announced the French ship Ville de Majunga had been captured by a British cruiser, making 108 French merchantmen seized by the British since the French-German armistice.

100,000 Greeks Still Wait Nazi Thrust on Bulgarian Frontier

BELGRADE, March 10 (INS)—With more than 150,000 German motorized forces poised at southern Bulgarian front er points for an anticipated invasion of Greece, heavily reinforced Hellenic troops took up battle positions today and prepared to defend their ancient land against the Nazis.

The Greek troops spread along a 200-mile defense line extending from the Yugoslavian-Albanian border to the Gulf of Kavalla on the Aegean Sea.

Greek army forces virtually evacuated western Thrace, leaving behind only rear guard units to impede the first snock of the expected German drive against Salonika, the Aegean "gateway to the Balkans."

Along the new main Greek defense line, it was estimated 100,000 Greek troops were stationed and alert for action.

Rumors that the German legions already had invaded Greece proved foundationless.

Greece reiterated her determination to fight to the finish rather than accept a German-dictated peace with Italy. At the same time Athens waited for a reply from Turkey on the Greek request for a statement of Ankara's intentions.

A plain indication that Britain has assured Greece of aid was seen in this semi-official Greek statement:

"Greece is indifferent to any threat. Greece will defend her integrity and independence by the side of her powerful allies and friends to the bitter end."

BRITISH BOMBERS READY

As soon as the German push into Greece begins, Balkan quarters expected, British bombers will unleash heavy attacks on German columns, bases and communications lines in Bulgaria and against the German-controlled Polesti oil fields in Rumania.

There were rumors that Turkey has agreed to open the newly-mined Dardanelles to British warships, which would pass from the Mediterranean to the Black Sea to shell the Bulgarian and Rumanian coasts.

12 Firemen Killed, 21 Injured In Brockton Theater Flames

BROCKTON, March 10—Twelve firemen were killed and 21 were burned and injured when the downtown Strand Theater collapsed early today while the firemen battled a general alarm fire.

The victims, fighting the flames from on and under the theater balcony, were trapped, crushed, burned and smothered when the snow-weighted roof collapsed. The weight of the flaming debris collapsed the balcony in turn.

Working desperately, police, newspapermen and firemen from a dozen towns pulled the injured from the ruins, as ambulances and doctors recruited from the entire South Shore raced them to Brockton Hospital.

Here there was turmoil as weeping relatives and friends also gathered in the early morning.

State Marshal Opens Probe of Brockton Fire

BROCKTON, March 10—State Fire Marshal Stephen J. Garrity personally opened an investigation today into the Strand Theater tragedy where 12 firemen lost their lives a few hours earlier in the collapse of the roof.

With Garrity was David Irving of Brockton, contractor who renovated and repaired the theater about four years ago.

Fire Chief Dickinson, still showing signs of the early morning ordeal, told the state fire marshal he did not believe the fire was burning long enough to have eaten away the roof supports.

For several hours, Fireman Daniel Reardon was listed among the missing, but a later check at a roll call revealed that he had escaped and was in good condition.

The fire broke out in the basement of the theater, housed in the Washburn block, about two hours after hundreds of movie goers had left the theater.

Fire Chief Frank F. Dickinson stated that there was a small explosion before the roof collapsed, this blast coming when the flames reached the theater projection room, where films were stored.

After giving his statement to the state fire marshal's stenographer, the chief said he would set a tentative figure of $100,000 as the fire loss, although smoke damage to

HERO PRIEST'S OWN STORY OF HOW VALIANT MEN DIED IN HOLOCAUST

BROCKTON, March 10—Veteran of many death scenes, including the horror of Boston's Pickwick Club disaster in July, 1925, the Rev. Lawrence P. Morrisroe of St. Patrick's Church, gave a grim picture today of the Strand Theater fire collapse, where 12 firemen died.

"When I got the call," he said, "I hurried right over to the theater and entered by the School st. side. I wore a fireman's helmet and coat.

"Tons of water was pouring down from the roof and there were flames leaping high all around. I saw Lieut. Buckley trapped in the ruins. Carroll and Murphy and the others were all around him. The water was coming down on top of me and there was six inches of water where I was standing.

RITES FOR THE DYING

"I shook hands with Buckley. He was buried up to his waist in debris, trapped there. He was looking up at me. I gave him the last rites of the Catholic church.

"He said, 'Father, all the rest of the boys around me—don't forget them.' So I gave them the rites, and I prayed for them and for Buckley.

"When I came out I went through the orchestra section by a single door. As the firemen brought others out, I prayed for them.

"It was pitch dark in the streets, but the arc lights from the fire apparatus were inside. It was a spectacle. It staggered me. Crowds gathered in the streets and there was a panicky feeling among them.

"The firemen outside were excited. I gave them words of encouragement. Some of them were hysterical, they were so wrought over the death of their friends.

"I have seen death many times before but this was one of the worst. I knew most of the men intimately.

"I went back to the firehouse at 8 o'clock this morning and stayed there until the last man was taken out of the theater.

"I told the other men, 'Your heroism in the face of death and in the pursuit of your duty, imperilling your lives to bring out your fallen comrades, cannot be overestimated.'

"Nobody can understand the magnitude of the disaster."

Brockton Mayor Says Men Died Like Heroes

BROCKTON, March 10—"These men died the death of heroes."

With these words, Mayor Fred D. Rowe today pledged full resources of the city in efforts to aid firemen injured in the Strand Theater disaster as well as families of the deceased.

"We will do everything within our power and within the city's means in efforts to relieve some of the distress in this terrible thing," he said.

Bus Tieup in N. Y. As Strikes Spread

By the Associated Press

New Yorkers accustomed to riding the buses got around with dufficulty today as a strike of 3500 bus drivers upset service on 27 routes serving 875,000 persons.

It was the city's first major transportation tie-up in a quarter of a century and was the most spectacular of the various strikes over the country.

Quiet picketing by A. F. of L. electrical workers started at the South Plainfield, N. J., plant of the Cornell Dubilier Co. The company president said 2400 were on strike, affecting production of $1,500,000 of defense subcontracts. Wage increases were demanded by the union.

Another new strike was called at the J. G. Brill Co., Philadelphia. The company has $418,661 of defense contracts. Asked by the union were wage increases, a union shop and vacation and seniority concessions.

The CIO United Automobile Workers went on strike today at the Midland Steel Products Co., which makes automobile frames used in Army trucks. Conciliator James F. Dewey went to Detroit for a last-minute attempt to bring about a truce.

He also was expected to avert a strike which the same union has threatened to call at three Ford Motor Co. plants.

Another conciliator at Detroit, L. F. Rye, said the UAW and officials of the Federal Motor Truck Co. would resume negotiations tomorrow over differences which caused 350 production workers to walk out Friday. The company has a $5,000,000 Army truck order.

Another unsettled Detroit strike held up installation of material at the Chrysler Army Tank Arsenal. This involved a jurisdictional dispute between A. F. of L. machinists and carpenters.

3500 DRIVERS INVOLVED

Members of CIO's Transport Workers' Union struck against the Fifth Avenue Coach Co. and the New York City Omnibus Corp. after rejection of demands for a 25-per cent wage increase, uniform eight-hour day and better working conditions. The union said 3500 drivers, manning 95 per cent of the Manhattan and Queens buses were involved.

In othre labor-management controversies there were these weekend developments:

The CIO Steel Workers' Organizing Committee notified the U. S. Steel Corp. and its subsidiaries that the union would terminate its contract with them if necessary to obtain a wage increase of 10 cents an hour. The union rejected a compromise of 2½ cents an hour by the corporation's president, Benjamin Fairless.

ALUMINUM STRIKE LOOMS

The Office of Production Management said the Allis-Chalmers Co., Milwaukee, had declined to accept in its present form a formula for ending a strike now 47 days old. The company wanted a guarantee that a referee who would be named under the plan would have no power to call for the discharge of employes who failed to pay union dues. The company has $45,000,000 of defense orders.

The CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America decided to vote tonight on whether to accept a proposal by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in response to the Union's demand for wage increases of 10 cents an hour and overtime rates. In the meanwhile, a scheduled one-day strike was postponed.

Officials of the CIO Aluminum Workers of America scheduled another conference with representatives of the Aluminum Co. of America over demands for 10 cents an hour raises and overtime adjustments at the Edgewater, N. J., plant. The union local has authorized a strike.

Fire Victim, 56, Fights for Life

MAYNARD, March 10—Michael Esnamswich, 56, the forgotten man at a Main st., rooming house fire, was fighting for his life today at Emerson Hospital, Concord.

Firemen assisted seven other roomers in leaving the burning house, and were told all the occupants were safely out.

Lying unconscious in his room, however, was Esnamswich, according to fire officials, who found him after forcing the door.

The roomer's bed caught fire from a cigarette and he was felled by the smoke before they could get the bedroom door open.

Woman, 106, Scorns Cold

CANTERBURY, N. H., March 10—In a year in which severe colds reached epidemic stage, Myra Green, a very spruce old lady, boasted today that she never had passed a more healthful winter—after celebrating her 106th birthday anniversary.

Believed to be the oldest resident of New Hampshire, Miss Green moved to the Shaker colony here about 20 years ago. She has been a member of the sect since she was a girl.

Worcester Man, 74, Burns to Death Despite Wife's Aid

WORCESTER, March 10—Despite the valiant attempt of his wife to save him, Henry W. Turcotte, 74, of Cohasset st., a semi-invalid, was burned to death today as he sat smoking his pipe in his home.

The aged victim, father of Capt. Wilfred H. Turcotte of the Worcester fire department, apparently dropped his lighted pipe.

His wife, Mrs. Regina Turcotte, 72, rushed to his side and tried to beat out the flames with her hands. She was taken to the City Hospital suffering from burns.

Lyons Bribe Trial Draws Big Crowd

In a Middlesex County Superior Court room which was packed to the doors, Mayor John W. Lyons of Cambridge and Paul Mannos, Brookline contractor, today went on trial on charges of conspiracy, requesting and accepting bribes.

A special venire of 45 was added to the usual numbers of prospective jurors so that both the State and defense counsel could avail themselves of the right to challenge a total of 64 men.

Dist. Atty. Robert F. Bradford chose the task of outlining the State's case, with Asst. Dist. Atty. Albert assisting. Mayor Lyons was represented by Atty. Francis T. Leahy and Mannos by Atty. Herbert F. Callahan.

Judge Harold P. Williams was presiding. Many persons prominent in political circles in the State as well as in Cambridge occupied seats in the courtroom.

VARIOUS INDICTMENTS

A Middlesex Grand Jury, after several months of investigation, indicted Mayor Lyons and Mannos, former head of the defunct Canton Mutual Insurance Co., jointly on seven charges and Lyons alone on two.

All the State's allegations grew out of municipal construction done in Cambridge during Mayor Lyons' regime.

Lyons was charged with requesting and accepting bribes from John V. Kimball, former mayor of Malden, present representative and an engineer, as well as from Charles R. Greco of Winchester, chairman of the state art commission.

BUILDING WORK

Kimball's firm did the engineering work on the Cambridge Maternity Hospital, the Cambridge Tuberculosis Hospital and the addition to Cambridge High and Latin School.

Greco's concern did erection work connected with the municipal incinerator and garage, the Lafayette sq. fire house and the Latin school addition.

Tractors Pledged Nazi Farmers —After the War

BERLIN, March 10 (AP)—The German farmer after the war is to possess a "peoples' tractor" just as his city cousin will have a "peoples' auto," Dr. Robert Ley, leader of the Nazi workers' front, predicted today at the opening of the Vienna Fair.

Ley said a plant to produce tractors would be the largest of its type in the world and added they would be so cheap that 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 German farmers would be able to buy them.

FRAIL DINGHY SAVES PAIR IN SHIPWRECK

A Gloucester skipper and his crew of one today owed their lives to a sturdy, eight-foot dinghy in which they rode safely onto Duxbury Beach after a howling gale and surf broke to bits their 48-foot schooner.

One of the survivors, Capt.

Dudley Murray Thomas Mumford

Thomas E. Mumford, 48, built the dinghy himself. In it he and his dog, "Jitters," and Dudley Murray, 21, matched their seamanship against towering seas to escape death.

En route from Gloucester to New Jersey their schooner, On Time, struck jagged rocks off Gurnet Light and rapidly filled with water.

How the two men managed to launch a dinghy, clamber into it and get oars working without being swamped in the boiling surf was a mystery even to the hardy Coast Guards of Gurnet station.

"We had to do it or drown," was the laconic explanation of Mumford.

The coastguards had sighted the little schooner in distress and sought to launch a boat, and sent patrols up and down the sandy stretches, expecting to find only bodies.

Then they came upon the small boat, beached and in perfect trim. Then they found the two men and the dog, Jitters, shivering in a small shack on the beach. They took them to the life-saving station and thawed them out and sent them on their way.

Munford told Coast Guardsmen that after he and Murray got away in the dinghy they discovered the dog had vanished, and as they gazed back toward the little ship it swiftly broke in half and on another wave splintered.

Riding high on the crest of a wave they spotted the dog, swimming for his life.

Ends Saving their own lives, the two men rowed to him and again performed a miracle of courage and seamanship by hauling him into the little cockleshell in which they rode.

Brems Clears Way For Parade on 17th

It was quite a tussle, but the city street commission and the public works department finally found out about the route of the March 17th parade today, and Public Celebrations Director Louis J. Brems said he couldn't see why there was so much excitement.

"I was going to file the application for the permit anyhow," he explained to all those interested—and there were many.

"I just didn't have the details available at the moment everybody insisted on knowing.

"The parade will be from Andrew sq. to Dorchester st., East 4th, G, Thomas park, East 6th, H, East 4th, Farragut rd., East Broadway to West Broadway. It'll end at Dorchester ave.

CENTER OF STORM

All of which was quite a mouthful to speak in one piece, but it was nothing to the difficulties Mr. Brems had been confronted with a little while before.

The simple admission that he still didn't know the route of the procession at a little after 10 a. m. seven days before the event had brought down all sorts of wrath on his head.

The public works department heads were especially cross with Director Brems, wanting to know how the heck they could have all the streets in apple-pie order if they didn't know what streets.

"Why," exploded Commr. George G. Hyland, "everyone knows there can't be any ice on the route. One horse slipping might send a dozen spectators to the hospital."

"Have you arranged for the transportation of the 101st and 68th regiments from Camp Edwards yet?" was another query.

NO SOLDIERS YET

Brems took to looking annoyed at this point.

"Not yet," he said.

"How much is it going to cost the City of Boston?"

"We're planning on spending about the same as last year—about $3000."

"Well, Mr. Brems, won't the transportation and feeding of all these soldiers make a difference?"

"Everything will be all right, I assure you, gentlemen," was Brems' reply. "Kindly give me a little time to settle my plans."

Time's Nearly Up! Hurry That Income Tax to Avoid Jam

This is exemption week, perhaps better known as income tax week, with those who were lucky enough to have made a good year's pay scanning through bad debts and taxes to cut down their Federal income tax.

Collector Thomas B. Hassett warned that only six more days remain for filing 1940 returns and that those who delay until the last minute will have to wait in line.

All returns which are mailed prior to midnight Saturday are accepted as filed on time.

"I WANNA GO HOME!"

ONE POUND TO GO—Having spent the seven weeks of his life in a nursery incubator, little Dickie Snyder of the Dorchester Charles Snyders is mighty eager to leave it . . . and expresses his feelings by pounding on the window. Dickie weighed three pounds at birth . . . and now tips the Fairbanks at five-odd, but he'll have to wait until he gains a bit more before leaving his temporary home.

'Ukulele Ike' Broke, Promises Come-Back

HOLLYWOOD, March 10 (INS)—Cliff Edwards, whose tunes and comedy in his more familiar role as "Ukulele Ike" once brought him handsome returns from stage and films, was in bankruptcy today.

Declaring that his humor had not been in very great demand lately, the whimsical actor filed a petition stating that he owed $26,000 more than he could pay.

"But I'll make a come-back," he said.

Canada Flier, Home, Rates Nazis Low

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, March 10 (AP)—Pilot Officer Arthur Donahue returned to North America on leave expressing little respect for the German airmen he faced for months as a fighter of the RAF.

The 27-year-old former commercial pilot from St. Charles, Minn., told reporters that, individually, German pilots are "no trouble."

EX-IDOL KILLS 3 BULLS TO RESTORE FAME

MEXICO CITY, March 10 (AP)—El Magnifico, the fallen idol of the bull ring, was downed by the first bull he tackled in his comeback campaign from "supreme disgrace," but recovered and dispatched three bulls before retiring in some doubt as to whether he had won back his public.

The high humiliation of having failed to best a bull last Sunday was upon Lorenzo Garza when he went forth to redeem himself in the tense arena this afternoon.

He started brilliantly and had hardly begun when he won the approving cry of "ole." But after a series of passes he was caught on the horns of the bull and hurled to the ground, half stunned. He killed the first bull after a few minutes without ever having recovered fully from the impact.

The wind made his cape work difficult, and swirling dust added to his troubles.

He left the ring after his third and final bull amid jeers and cheers. Some threw flowers, while others hurled cushions, oranges and wadded paper.

Garza's green and silver embroidered suit was torn on the horns of the first bull, but he showed no wounds except a scratch on the left leg. His second bull responded poorly to the cape work loved by bullfight fans, and the third was even more trying.

The 20,000 fans filed out in heated dispute over Garza's merits, as always. Bullfight experts were at odds themselves.

But while Garza was considered still on probation, he apparently escaped the newly sharpened penalties providing up to 15 days in jail and a 5000-peso fine (about $1000) for bullfighters who don't beat the bull.

He had been heckled out of the ring, with threats of mayhem, when nine thrusts of his sword failed to kill the bull a week ago.

Edwards' Bear Mascot Beaten by Own Sister

DRY MILLS, Me., March 10 (AP)—"Meanie McGee," 10-months-old black bear, was rendered hors de combat in a violent display of militarism today just before he was sent off to the army at Camp Edwards, Mass., for service as a mascot.

Whether he was giving vent to conscientious objections to soldiering or was expressing his anxiety to get into the thick of battle could not be determined. At any rate, his departure was delayed pending recovery from wounds of battle with—above all—his own sister.

It all started when the bruin, which soldiers at the camp requested, was about to be removed from his den and placed in the big steel cage in which he was to be hauled off to the Army.

McNeil Brown, superintendent of the State game preserve, had tried to pry "Meanie" loose when the 175-pound animal sulked in the den. Apparently irked at all the poking, "Meanie" leaped at Brown but the latter sidestepped.

"Meanie" landed on his noggin and then pounced on his sister who was cavorting on the end of a chain at a tieup near by.

Although younger and lighter than her brother, "Meanie's" sister gave him a lively going over for several minutes, inflicting a gash in his left leg which will require treatment for a few days.

2 Maine Wives Are Held Here As Vagrants

Plans to bask in Alabama sunshine were temporarily suspended for two young Portland, Me., wives, arraigned on a vagrancy charge in Brookline district court today.

Judge Daniel A. Rollins, after listening to an explanation as to how they happened to be in a car registered to a Roxbury man, found stalled in a snowbank at Pond and Cumberland aves., at 2 a. m. today, ordered the tourists held in $100 each until tomorrow to investigate the case.

Pleading not guilty to the vagrancy charge were Mrs. Gertrude Mikulanecz, 19, of Shipley st., Portland, and Mrs. Alberta G. Miller, 23, of Congress st., Portland.

Mrs. Miller told the court she planned to join her husband in Alabama and that she and her companion came to Boston by train. They had only sufficient funds for train fare here, she said, and after arrival met a man on Washington st. who offered to assist them.

Sergt. Thaddeus O'Hearn said that on a call from a citizen that a stalled car was blocking the highway, he went to Pond and Cumberland aves., and found the two women in the car.

Suspect Denies Strangle Death

NEW YORK, March 10 (AP)—George J. Cvek, 23-year-old hitch hiker, today pleaded innocent to a first degree murder charge in the slaying of Mrs. Catherine Papas, pretty Bronx housewife, in her apartment last month.

Cvek stood before Bronx County Judge Lester Patterson and only spoke to say "not guilty."

He was held without bail and no date was set for trial.

1100 Flee Roxbury School Fire in 3Min.

Eleven hundred children, from kindergarten age to eighth-graders, made the street in just three minutes flat today as a fire alarm signal was sounded in the Hugh O'Brien and Ralph Waldo Emerson schools in Dudley st., Roxbury.

The fire itself was in the O'Brien School—a defective bell wiring at the front door. The alarm system, however, operates in both schoolhouses, as they are separated only by the yard.

John O'Neil, custodian's assistant, discovered the blaze and tried valiantly to extinguish it alone, but the smoke poured up through the 17 classrooms of the O'Brien building.

Headmaster Joseph E. Lynch sounded the school alarm signal at the same time he called the fire department and Sub-Master Arthur Robertie assisted in herding the 550 elementary grade youngsters to the street.

In the Emerson School Miss Marion Kanter, master's assistant, directed the fire drill of the 560 smaller children. Twenty teachers in the O'Brien School and 17 in the Emerson School paraded out with their charges.

Damage was estimated at $25, but it was all very exciting for the children and they were able to get an extra 10 minutes added to their lunch period.

GIRL LEAPS INTO RIVER, 3 SAVE HER

Apparently deaf to shouted warnings, a Waltham girl climbed the rail of the Bemis bridge on the Newton-Watertown line today and plunged into the Charles river.

Wilfred Newell, 27, of Stuart st., Watertown, rushed to the rail and saw her standing in four feet of water, holding onto the piling.

He ordered her to come out, but she cried hysterically that she had quarrelled with a boy and had told him she was going to jump into the river.

Newell kept her talking until a truck pulled up.

The truckmen, John MacDonald of Cottage st., Watertown, and Salvatore Fiorio of Glenwood ave., Cambridge, threw over a length of rope and ordered the shivering victim to tie it round her waist.

Pulled up to the bridge, she said her name was Rose Palumbo, 24, of Bright st., Waltham. She said she left her place of employment in Chapel st., Newton, to carry out the suicide threat.

No one was at her home, she told the truckmen, so she was taken to the home of Mary O'Queen, a nurse, in Main st., Watertown, to be treated for immersion and cold.

Newton and Watertown police and a Metropolitan District Police boat, piloted by John A. Murphy and Thomas L. Hyde, were on the way at the time of the rescue.

Draftee's Deluge Of Trouble Dents Judge's Heart

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 10 (INS)—Tom Leeds, 30, charged with intoxication, came before Judge Cecil D. Holland, who is not patient with those who imbibe too freely. The judge asked Leeds to state his case.

"Well, judge," said Leeds, "I lost my job at an aircraft factory. I went home and found a notice to report in the draft. I went over to my girl's house to tell her my troubles and discovered she had run away and married another man. Then I got drunk."

"Hmmm," hmmed Judge Holland. "Five dollars—suspended."

Bridegroom Held in $1000 After Crash

ADAMS, March 10—Married life started out with a bang today for Edmund ("Dodo") Cassidy, 50, well known member of the World War 26th Division, now a bartender at the Cheshire Inn.

Cassidy was married Saturday afternoon in Cheshire to Mrs. Mary Cleminson of Adams. Two hours after the ceremony, Cassidy's car was in collision with a car operated by Miss Ethel A. Brandon, 24, of East rd., Adams, on Route 8, Cheshire.

State police were unable to find Cassidy at his place of business Saturday; in fact, reporting back to Pittsfield barracks that a friend, Arthur LaBlue, had obstructed their efforts. They returned yesterday and arrested LaBlue on a charge of obstructing justice.

While police were carrying out that mission, Cassidy appeared at the Adams police station with an attorney and surrendered.

Today in district court La Blue pleaded not guilty to obstructing justice and Cassidy pleaded not guilty to drunkenness, operating under the influence, driving so as to endanger and leaving the scene of an accident without making himself known.

Judge Harrington continued the cases to April 5. Cassidy was released on $1000 bail.

Strike Suspends Paper Publication

PITTSBURGH, March 10 (AP)—The Morning Post-Gazette, a Paul Block newspaper, today suspended publication "until further notice" after "some production employes" refused to cross the picket line of a striking A. F. of L. union about the newspaper's building.

The A. F. of L. Pittsburgh Newspaper Alliance, a union of outdoor circulation men, went on strike last Thursday, claiming a non-union man had performed the work of a union member in the distribution of a special "Aid-to-Britain" charity edition.

Police accuse him of shooting down his wife, Mrs. Adelaide Crowley, 25, mother of three children, and her aunt, Mrs. Martha Querze, 28, in the latter's Prentiss st., Cambridge, home on Feb. 11.

According to police, the double shooting followed Mrs. Crowley's refusal to return home after they had become estranged because of Crowley's drinking habits.

Army, G-Men Probe Soldier's Death Here

Promising that "the Army will keep nothing hidden," Maj.-Gen. James A. Woodruff, commander of the First Corps Area, today ordered a "full and complete investigation" into the mystery death of Pvt. Fernand Trudel, 22, stationed at Fort Banks, Winthrop.

Thus the Army followed closely the move of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in a probe to determine how the young volunteer from Gardner suffered a ruptured gall bladder and intestines.

From these injuries he died at Massachusetts General Hospital, where he was removed from Boston Psychopathic Hospital. He had been taken to Psychopathic Hospital from the fort after asserting showing signs of mental disturbance.

Because the soldier had been in the psychopathic hospital, the State Department of Mental Health also entered the investigation, according to an announcement by the department director, Dr. Clifton T. Perkins.

LIKE INJURY FROM KICK

In ordering the Army probe, Gen. Woodruff directed the inspector-general at Corps Area headquarters to make a complete investigation of all details surrounding the case, from the date of Trudel's induction into the military service, Feb. 15, until he died last Saturday.

Thus far, Army officials at the fort deny that Trudel was mistreated in any way, although Medical Examiner William J. Brickley, in announcing that death had resulted from internal ruptures, added informally:

"It looked as though he had been kicked."

Dr. Solomon Gagnon, superintendent at the Psychopathic Hospital, said he ordered the youth to the Massachusetts General after he found the young soldier was suffering a cheek abrasion, which was infected, a swollen jaw, multiple bruises about the jaw and a markedly tender abdomen.

Dr. Gagnon said Trudel in his opinion, was in need of surgical treatment rather than psychoanalysis and, for that reason, he had sent him to the Mass. General for treatment.

Lieut. Col. Dean F. Winn, head of the post hospital at Ft. Banks, when told of Dr. Gagnon's report said:

"I'm sorry to disagree. Nothing happened to him while he was here. Our investigation showed no injuries other han a cheek abrasion which, in our minds, was self inflicted.

"Post Commander Col. Monte J. Hickok and I visited Trudel at Massachusetts General Hospital. We saw a few scratches, but no bruises such as Dr. Gagnon brings out in his report.

"I haven't heard anything new as to an investigation. As far as we, here at the post, are concerned, the case is closed."

BODY TAKEN HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Theogene Trudel, grief-stricken parents of the youngster, who have demanded an investigation of their son's death, yesterday accompanied the body back to their West Broadway, Gardner, home.

They learned only yesterday that their son had been discharged from the Army, Feb. 28, the day he was removed from Fort Banks to the Boston Psychopathic Hospital, "because of his mental condition."

Trudel enlisted in the Army only three weeks ago. His parents said he had never known a day's illness.

GOVERNOR'S BOND ISSUES MAY BE LOST

Warning that the $5,300,000 in bond issues recommended by Governor Saltonstall might be blocked in the legislature was sounded today when the $62,900,000 appropriation for the Public Works Department opened consideration of the record $184,000,000 biennium State budget.

Immediately after the Mayors' Club of Massachusetts indorsed the proposed distribution of $19,200,000 to cities and towns for highway wo k, House Chairman Albert F. Bigelow (R.) of Brookline raised the question.

Bigelow told the joint ways and means committee there was some doubt as to whether the necessary two-thirds vote could be mustered for that part of the bond issue which would raise $1,800,000 for road work.

TOBIN HEADS MAYORS

"If for any reason the bond issue is not approved," he said, "we will have to take the money to match federal grants out of the amount appropriated for dist i bution to cities and towns

"That is a problem that may come before us."

Mayor Tobin, as presid nt of the organization, led a delegation of 10 mayors in approving $9,600,000 an nually out of gasoline taxes. This distribution, he said was essential to "relieve the tax burden on real estate."

Mayors John D. Lynch of Somerville and Rogert L. Putnam of Springfield backed up the Boston mayor.

PROF. QUIZ FILES ANSWER TO EX-WIFE'S ALIMONY PLEA

Contending that he had furnished all support for their son and that the boy was now living exclusively with him, radio's Professor Quiz today filed an answer in Middlesex Probate Court to a petition of his divorced wife for alimony.

The professor, known to radio fans as Craig Earle, is really Arthur E. Baird formerly of Belmont. He was divorced by Mrs. Grace L. Baird of Belmont, in 1935 on grounds of desertion.

In this answer the professor alleged that even though his wife was granted custody of their son, Arthur, Jr., he always supported him, had provided a college education and that the boy, now 23-years-old, was now living with him of his own choice.

In her petition Mrs. Baird said for two years after the divorce she had supported her son and herself and knew nothing of her ex-husband's whereabouts.

Then, she said, she found out Baird was making large sums of money in radio work and that she feels he could spare some for her support.

Baird denied all this and told the court that he has since remarried and assumed new obligations. He also contended that because of present conditions there is no element of certainty in his profession.

According to Mrs. Baird, she did not know where Baird was for two years after she won the divorce and custody of their son. However, the radio quiz director alleges that she has not only known his whereabouts for several years, but waived rights to alimony when she divorced him.

GRAND JURY HEARS EMERY DEATH STORY

With Asst. Dist.-Atty. Edward M. Sullivan presenting testimony, the Suffolk County grand jury today began hearing the case of Mrs. Ruth Steadman, former Needham girl, charged with the poison and strangulation murder of Robert Emery of Natick.

Emery, 26-year-old Natick realty dealer and father of two children, was found dead on Jan. 21 in the Brighton st., West End, apartment of the blonde, 27-year-old Mrs. Steadman.

On Feb. 4 she was held without bail in Municipal Court for the grand jury, after testimony she hd admitted administering a heavy dose of sleeping potion in milk to Emery and then winding a cord round his neck.

Today, as other witnesses preceded her into the grand jury room, Emery's attractive widow, Ruth, also a blonde, waited outside for her call.

She was calm and when newspaper photographers asked if she would mind posing for pictures, she smiled and replied:

"No, I realize you have your work to do."

The first person called into the grand jury room was Morgan Murphy, Boston police photographer. Following him was Leonard Travers, a draftsman.

A HOLLYWOOD STAR ... romantic ... beloved ... famous! Of course that's what you'd like to be! So would every other little girl, who's worth her salt!

But before that can happen, you'll have to store up what grown-ups call, "vitality." And, you'd be told the same thing by your favorite star...whether she's Judy, or Hedy, or Deanna.

More than anything else in the world it is "vitality" that makes a movie star...or anybody else for that matter...attractive, successful and happy.

Now, one of the surest ways a little girl like you can get "vitality" is to eat good, wholesome, nourishing food. For instance, you ought to eat your bread...crusts and all...three times a day! People who know say there just isn't any better food to give you the health and pep that make life so much fun.

And speaking of bread, why don't you tell your mother that Bond Bread is specially good? And that it's made with flour, milk, fine table salt, and pure shortening so fine in quality that she'd be proud to use them in her own kitchen. Thanks! See you in Hollywood in 1950!

Members of two Fascist Elite divisions thrown into the battle by Mussolini, who was declared by captured Italian officers to have visited Tepeleni last week, were among those taken prisoner, the Greeks said.

Greeks predicted the imminent fall of Tepeleni, heavily fortified city held by the 11th Italian army in the face of repeated assaults since December.

ITALIANS ATTACK IN VAIN

Before their latest advance, the Greeks beat back five counter-charges by Italians, who swept in waves over ground flaming with explosions of Greek shells.

Entire companies of Italian riflemen, cut off by machine-gun fire and enveloped by artillery, were declared to have surrendered.

British and Greek planes backing up the stepped-up Greek offensive, were said to have downed seven Italian planes in a Sunday battle.

Bulgaria Reported Set To Demobilize Reserve

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 10 (AP)—The Pest, a newspaper, said in a dispatch from Sofia today Bulgaria planned to demobilize all her reservists on the ground the men were needed to till farms and that Bulgaria no longer was threatened.

Many reservists were rushed to the Turkish and Greek frontiers, alongside German forces of occupation, in a virtually general Bulgarian mobilization a week ago, when Bulgaria feared attack from Turkey and Britain broke relations.

Navy Air Bases O. K'd by Senate

WASHINGTON, March 10 (AP)—The Senate approved today establishment of naval air bases on sites acquired from Britain in exchange for United States destroyers, an action which the Senate naval committee said would have the effect of "congressional ratification" of the exchange.

The action came when the Senate passed a $245,228,500 authorization for naval public works, including besides the work at the British bases development of facilities at Guam and Samoa, in the Alaskan area, at various other Pacific locations, in the Canal Zone, in the Caribbean and in continental United States.

The Naval Affairs Comm'ttee reported that of the total, $58,250,000 represented the amount necessary to complete the establishment of bases on British soil.

The measure goes back to the House for action on Senate amendments.

Two Bulgarian Regiments Give Up in Yugoslavia

NEW YORK, March 10 (INS)—Two Bulgarian regiments have crossed the border into Yugoslavia and given themselves up, a British radio broadcast picked up by NBC said today.

The British announcer said officers commanding the regiment stated they "no longer wished to fight for their country which has been so threacherously sold out."

DUCE CRUISER SUNK BY SUB, BRITISH SAY

LONDON, March 10 (AP)—The British admiralty announced today that one of Italy's fastest cruisers, a sistership of the Bartolomeo Colleoni, had "almost certainly" been sunk by submarine attack in the Mediterranean.

"An Italian cruiser of the Condottieri 'A' Class has been torpedoed and almost certainly sunk by one of our submarines," the admiralty said.

It added that an escort of Italian destroyers apparently had picked up some of the survivors.

The Bartolomeo Colleoni and her three sister ships were reputed to be among the fastest cruisers in the world, with a speed that was designed to permit them to overtake destroyers. In their trials one of them was reported to have reached a speed of 42 knots.

The Australian cruiser Sydney and British destroyers sent the Bartolomeo Colleoni to the bottom of the Mediterranean last July 19.

The other three ships of the class are the Giovanni Delle Bande Nere, the Alberto di Giussano and Alberico da Barbiano, all of 5069 tons, and mounting eight six-inch guns. All ships of this class were built in 1930.

The Italian communique of Saturday announced that a warship of medium tonnage had been sunk in the Mediterranean from an undetermined cause, and that a large part of the crew had been rescued.

Hundreds of persons flocked to Nantasket Beach today to collect thousands of clams and quahaugs washed into the shallows by the week-end storm. Fifty barrels of the quahaugs alone were carried away during the afternoon. There were a few lobsters and crabs available as well, but all small ones.

Nazis to Sink U. S. Ships Carrying Aid to Britain

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, March 10—Any American ships carrying aid to Britain under terms of the lease-lend bill will be sunk the moment they pass Germany's "iron ring" blockade round the British Isles, Nazi military authorities reiterated today.

While the press lashed out at President Roosevelt as an "absolute dictator" waging an undeclared war on Europe in behalf of Britain, officials emphasized that Hitler gave his answer to the bill on Jan. 30, long before it was passed.

On that date he announced any ships carrying aid to Britain which came within the range of German U-boat torpedoes would be sunk, regardless of nationality.

German quarters took the view the United States, which before the war exerted a powerful influence in Europe and which all nations, including Germany, courted, has now become a definite belligerent.

The blockade zone, it was pointed out, is not being expanded and still embraces the waters round the British Isles. Therefore, it was said, it will be on his own responsibility if President Roosevelt sends American ships into the zone.

Gayda Calls Aid Bill 'Intervention by U. S.'

ROME, March 10 (AP)—Virginio Gayda, Fascist editorial spokesman, declared today the British aid bill was "open intervention in the war against the Axis" which eventually may bring into play the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact "with many disagreeable surprises to England and the United States in the Pacific."

"Isolated in its elementary reality," he declared, "Roosevelt's gesture is a deliberate, unprovoked move toward war."

"So President Roosevelt voluntarily and publicly takes the United States out of the neutrality which already has been much violated in the past month and renews Wilson's warlike policy, afterward disapproved by the Senate . . .

"No excuse may be claimed for the change to the figure of a new aggressor which Roosevelt is preparing to attribute to the United States, dragging their people into an adventure which they do not seek and on which they have not been called to express an opinion under the sacred principles of democracy."

RAF BLASTS PORT; NAZIS RAKE LONDON

SOUTHEAST COAST, England, March 10 (AP)—A formation of bombers sweeping over the Dover strait in brilliant sunshine indicated the RAF was raiding the Nazi-held French port of Boulogne again today.

Explosions were heard from the direction of Boulogne soon after the bombers sped across the water. RAF fighters patrolled constantly overhead.

The foray followed heavy German air attacks during the night and early today on a section of the south coast after a lapse of more thn a month.

Although they were driven back time after time by a terrific anti-aircraft barrage, t he Germans returned persistently and dived low to reach their targets.

The raids caused an undisclosed number of civilian casualties. Incendiary bombs rained down on three towns, but quick work by fire-fighters kept the flames from reaching large proportions. A brewery, saloon and a number of other buildings were demolished. A nursing home was hit.

Sirens warned of raiders over London in mid-morning today but the all clear came in half an hour.

One daylight raider machine-gunned the streets of an east coast town, then was driven off by anti-aircraft fire from a ship it attempted to attack.

Rescue crews dug into the bomb-strewn debris of a three-story London building, looking for two fire watchers believed on the roof when the bomb hit.

Another explosive damaged a theater last night. Four policemen were killed in a hit on a station house. Another building was destroyed, but 130 persons, mostly women and children, escaped unhurt from a shelter in the basement.

Navy to Train 25,000 Fliers

NEW YORK, March 10 (AP)—The United States Navy recruiting bureau announced today it was preparing to enroll 25,000 young men as reserve aviators to man the expanding aerial forces of a two-ocean navy.

"The course to be taught will be the most complete and advanced aviation study projected anywhere in the world," said Comdr. F. K. O'Brien, officer-in-charge of the recruiting bureau.

The age requirements are from 20 to 27, and the basic academic requirements two or more years of college credits, or the equivalent.

Death Toll Grows In Brockton Blaze

stocks in adjoining stores had not been checked.

Roaring through the first floor and orchestra pit, flames had gained such headway that firemen were forced to fight the fire from the rear of the theater and from the balcony above.

Fire departments from a dozen towns aided, while State police and municipal ambulances from as far off as Yarmouth on the Cape sped to the scene.

Heavy snow on the roof was partly blamed for the large loss of life for, at the first time weakened, the roof crashed in sandwiching two groups of fire fighters between roof, balcony and the mezzanine floor.

The theater is next door to the police station and directly across the street from Brockton City Hall, in a district of department stores. Fire was prevented spread of the flames to adjoining structures.

State police were called from every barracks within a 45-mile radius bringing ambulances and other equipment.

DOCTORS, NURSES ON SCENE

All doctors in Brockton and doctors and nurses from nearby communities were sent to the scene as State police in radio cruisers received messages for aid and directed the recruiting.

Fire departments from Easton, Abington, Whitman, Weymouth, Bridgewater, Stoughton, Canton and many other towns responded after a general alarm was sounded.

Unable to determine the cause immediately, fire officials set damage approximately at $75,000.

Work of recovering the bodies of the victims was delayed temporarily, following a conference between Mayor Fred D. Rowe and Building Inspector William G. Green.

Four burned and crushed bodies were sighted in the debris, but then struggling mates were called back in fear that the death toll would be increased.

TOTTERING WALL RAZED

Work was renewed as soon as a tottering wall, tottering above the rear, was pulled back and sent crashing to the street outside.

A vivid story of how a dozen men died in the Brockton theater disaster today was told by the Rev. Lawrence P. Morrisroe of St. Patrick's Church, who attended the dying men, trapped as the roof collapsed. "I have seen death many times before but this was one of the worst," he said.

Boston Evening American Photo

The first alarm was sounded at 12.45 a. m., and a second about five minutes later. Firemen worked on what appeared to be a routine cellar fire for a time, until the flames burst through the orchestra pit, the floors and walls, all within a space of 10 minutes.

Fire Chief Dickinson then sounded a general alarm, calling all possible aid.

It was but a half-hour later that the roof crashed through on the massed firemen. While some died instantly, others were injured and pinned for many minutes while hero mates dug frantically at the timbers to free them.

HUGE CROWD WATCHES

The fire was discovered by Christopher Moore of North Montello st., the caretaker, who was on the second floor with his assistant, Roger Trunant of Hancock st. After smelling smoke, they saw flames in the basement and sounded an alarm.

Twice, firemen thought they had the blaze under control only to have it break out more furiously than ever.

More than 1000 people gathered in City Hall sq. to watch the fire and the number grew steadily throughout the morning.

The Washburn building is one of the oldest in the business district and housed more than a score of insurance and attorneys' offices.

City Hall is separated from the theater by a narrow street, but was not endangered. The police station backs up to the theater's stage door.

CARING FOR INJURED

When the roof collapsed, the roar could be heard by the crowd in the square. Many civilians, reporters and other volunteers rushed in to aid in pulling injured firemen from the debris.

The police garage and the nearby office of the telephone company were turned into emergency first-aid stations, where the less seriously injured were treated.

Victims were stretched out on blankets as doctors and nurses gave them aid.

When the roof collapsed it piled part of the balcony into one corner of the mezzanine and it was that section, buried 15-feet deep in debris, that search went on for the three missing men.

One of the injured, William Kelleher, miraculously escaped instant death. He was fighting the flames from a corner of the roof when it collapsed.

By a quirk of fate, he was left holding onto the corner wall and grabbed for a fire hose that was looped over the edge of the wall. On this lifeline, Kelleher slid down through the flames to the ground, where his mates beat out the fire in his clothing.

HE PLAYED HERO ROLE

Eyewitness Stories Of Theater Horror

BROCKTON, March 10—Eyewitnesses who saw firemen perish today in an avalanche of death and horror when the Strand Theater burned gave graphic accounts of the disaster.

One of the more vivid was by Cornelius T. Lyons, correspondent in Brockton for the Boston Evening American and one of the newspapermen who aided in rescue work.

"I went into the burning Strand Theater with the firemen," said Reporter Lyons, "and was standing on the stage, watching them at work in the balcony, when suddenly there was a terrific roar and the roof fell in on them.

"Lieuts. John F. Carroll and John Buckley and Fireman William Murphy were swept right through the floor of the balcony to the main floor in a pile of burning timbers, balcony seats and wreckage of the roof and ceiling.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

"At the other end of the balcony, about 20 firemen were trapped by the falling roof. Most of them were carried through the balcony floor, but six men at first reported missing, some eventually found dead, were caught under the roof timbers among the balcony seats.

"The heavy snow on the theater roof made the effect of the collapse even more terrifying than if the weather had been clear.

"The theater was filled with the shouts of injured men calling for help and screaming as the flames scorched their faces and hands. Only the heavy boots and raincoats of the men prevented more serious injuries to those who were saved.

"One fireman came through the ceiling as I ran up the aisle. I helped him to the floor and went back to the wreckage to aid the others.

SCENES OF HORROR

"Soon other firemen pulled apart the heap of debris and I went back to the police station to get medical aid for a cut on my hand. I don't know when I cut it, but I think it was when that fireman came through the ceiling.

"The scene inside the theater was a horrible one—the worst I have ever seen."

City Councilor John Asief, who also witnessed the collapse from the stage of the theater, said shrieks of the dying firemen could be heard above all else, Asief said:

"Like a great avalanche, a great section of the balcony tore loose and came sliding in my direction and stopped at the brink of the stage.

"There were about 20 firemen working near the top aisles of the balcony, and a smaller group beneath it. The men in the balcony were directing hose lines in a corner near the roof where a mass of flames had broken through.

SCREAMS OF VICTIMS

"Suddenly the whole building shook with a horrible creaking sound, and in less than half a minute the roof and upper tiers of the balcony came toward us on the stage like a landslide.

"I can still hear the screams of the men caught in the great mass of wreckage.

"Tons of water also cascaded down, and the entire building became filled with dense smoke."

Roy Frazen of Churchill ave. said he saw "at least four men crushed to death" on the orchestra floor.

"I was standing at a side entrance on the orchestra floor watching the firemen shooting water toward the roof when it came.

FIREMAN SAVES SELF

"There must have been 20 others caught in the wreckage."

Frazen said he "wanted to run in and try to help, but was held back by other spectators and officials."

Hearst Paper Gets AP Wire

NEW YORK, March 10 (AP)—The New York Journal and American, an afternoon daily published by William Randolph Hearst, Jr., today became a member of the Associated Press.

At the same time the 100-year-old Brooklyn Eagle, published by Frank D. Schroth, relinquished its membership in the co-operative newsgathering organization.

The new member is a consolidation, in the evening field, of the New York Evening Journal and the New York Morning American. When the consolidation was effected, four years ago, the American transferred its Associated Press morning membership to the Daily Mirror, with which it was combined in the morning field, but retained its Sunday morning edition.

$1.10 Cut in Hub Tax Rate Now Seen

On the basis of estimates supplied to the City Council this afternoon it appeared to the councilors that there might be a cut of $1.10 or more in Boston's $40.60 tax rate.

Mayor Tobin was asked for a guess by the council last week. He said he couldn't make one at this time, but that actual expenditures in 1940 were $81,110,731. This year, he said, he estimated spending totaling $78,809,608.

Train Smashes Weymouth Truck But Driver Lives

Gregory Marci of Main st., South Weymouth, 42-year-old town truck driver, barely escaped death today as he backed his machine across the New Haven tracks near South Weymouth depot. A train sheared off the front of the truck and tossed the wreck into a snowbank, Marci with it. He was treated by his own doctor. He said the lights on the crossing weren't working. Railroad officials insisted they were.

Hammer, Knife Furnish Clues in Beauty Murder

KANSAS CITY, March 10 (AP) Clumsily abandoned, blood-stained weapons of death guided police today in the search for the killer who beat pretty Miss Leila Adele Welsh, 24, with a stone mason's hammer, slashed her with a butcher knife and fled with a deeply cut section of her hip.

The body of the socially prominent brunette, her pajamas in shreds, was found in her bedroom yesterday morning by her mother, Mrs. Marie F. Welsh, who went to awaken the daughter to attend church.

Miss Welsh, a 1937 beauty contestant at the University of Kansas City, had been slain during the night by a person who apparently entered a bedroom window of the Welsh home on Rockhill rd., in a well-to-do section. Her head had been fractured in several places and her throat severely slashed.

HAMMER BY BED

The hammer was left at the foot of the bed. The knife's seven-inch blade was sticking in earth outside the open window. There were mud tracks on the window sill. Tucked in a neck wound was a man's shirt, minus its collar.

In the backyard of a home 100 yards away, police found the missing section of flesh. There, too, was a pair of bloodstained cotton gloves.

Police laboratory tests showed that Miss Welsh, granddaughter of a pioneer Kansas City real estate man, had not been criminally assaulted. A close check of valuables discounted robbery as the motive.

TALKED TO MOTHER

Miss Welsh, escorted by Richard W. Funk, an oil company employe whom she had been dating for five years, returned home at 1:30 a. m. Sunday morning. They had attended a circus sponsored by the police and had stopped later at a cocktail lounge.

After Funk left she talked a few minutes to her mother, then tiptoed past her brother, George, asleep on the living room davenport, to her bedroom at the rear of the house.

Shortly afterward the mother heard a thud which she thought was caused by the son falling off the davenport. She investigated and found him asleep. Mrs. Welsh told police she was up and around the house several times during the night, but heard nothing further.

Miss Welsh, beneficiary of a $65,000 trust fund established by her grandparents, had formerly taught school in Knoxville, Ill.

A university sorority sister, Miss Phyllis Wetherill, told police that Miss Welsh mentioned last week having met a young man while she was teaching in Knoxville who "wanted her to marry him, and she didn't know what to do about it."

Miss Wetherill also recalled that last December an unidentified man called Miss Welsh on the telephone, said "he had noticed her on the street and that he didn't know how to get introduced and so had called up to seek a date."

Miss Welch rejected his offer.

The young woman's mother said she had to force the door to her daughter's bedroom Sunday morning because a chair had been propped against it as though to bar entry. A string and a bit of newspaper led police to conclude the killer brought the hammer and knife wrapped up for concealment

Suspect Is Held In Attack on 14

Five of his alleged 14 women victims, one with bruised face and discolored eye, watched in municipal court today while George J. Brothers, 24, of Kendall st., Roxbury, was held for the grand jury in $15,000 on attack charges.

The girl with the bruised face and eye was Miss Evelyn Smalley, 20, of Worcester sq., South End, credited with having caused the Negro's arrest through face powder which besprinkled him when she gave battle and struck him with her compact.

Another of the prisoner's alleged victims, Miss Florence Rice of Harwich st., South End, 60-year-old retired nurse, is in City Hospital as a result of a beating he assertedly inflicted on her.

CHARLES BOYER, MARGARET SULLAVAN WORK TOGETHER IN 'BACK STREET'

Stars Teamed In Film Due At Memorial

Two of the screen's most glamorous stars, Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan, have at last been teamed in the starring roles of a picture.

The picture is Universal's "Back Street," a picturization of Fannie Hurst's sensational novel. It will head the bill at Keith-Memorial Theater starting tomorrow.

Both Boyer and Miss Sullavan have often expressed the wish to co-star in a picture, but, until the present, it had been found impossible to cast them, due to the fact that one was always unavailable when the other was between pictures.

Recently, Universal Studios, to whom each of the players is under contract to do one or more pictures each year, decided to produce "Back Street," and turned the assignment over to Bruce Manning, young writer who had just been promoted to a producership. His instructions were to get the best stars available in Hollywood.

BOTH AVAILABLE

Manning then discovered that, for the first time in five years, neither Boyer nor Miss Sullavan had any picture commitments which would call for their immediate services. Both were delighted that they were, at last, to be co-starred, and in "Back Street."

"Back Street" first appeared in serial form in the Cosmopolitan Magazine and aroused a storm of comment from all literary quarters. The boldness of its theme, its candid handling of the situations, and, above all, the excellence of the writing, made it one of the most-talked-of stories of the day.

It was published as a novel and immediately soared into the best-seller proportions, enjoying a greater reader audience than any popular novel published up to the time of its appearance.

Miss Sullavan is seen as the girl who is content to live in the back street of a successful man's life, demanding nothing but that he love her; helping him to a world-recognized success, while she herself remains in the shadows. Boyer plays the man, an international banker. Others in the cast are Richard Carlson, Frank McHugh, Tim Holt, Samuel S. Hinds and Frank Jenks.

ROSE TO FAME

Bruce Manning, who rose to Hollywood fame as a scenarist on six of Deanna Durbin's very successful pictures and whose first production chore is "Back Street," had Felix Jackson as his collaborator in the Hurst adaptation. Robert Stevenson, one of England's most brilliant young directors, directed.

On the same bill will be 'Let's Make Music," co-starring Bob Cross by and Jean Rogers with Elisabeth Risdon, Joseph Buloff, Joyce Compton and Crosby's Bobcats and Bobolinks.

ONE of the happier moments in the romance of Walter Saxel (Charles Boyer) and Ray Smith (Margaret Sullavan), unforgettable characters in Fannie Hurst's novel, "Back Street," which comes to Keith-Memorial screen tomorrow via Universal Studios.

Gay 90's Film Is Due At Fenway

ALL LOOKS serene with Rita Hayworth, the "strawberry blonde" of Warners' infectious comedy of the same name; James Cagney and Olivia DeHavilland, who compose a lively triangle in "Strawberry Blonde," due Thursday on the Paramount and Fenway screens.

"Strawberry Blonde," Warner Brothers' hilarious comedy of the naughty nineties, starring James Cagney and Olivia DeHavilland and featuring Rita Hayworth, Alan Hale, Jack Carson and George Tobias, will headline the twin-hit show at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters next Thursday.

The co-feature on the same program will be Paramount's horror thriller, "The Monster and the Lady," featuring Ellen Drew, Robert Paige and Paul Lukas.

Stepping out of the tough guy roles that he has been playing recently, Cagney, is seen in "The Strawberry Blonde" as a gay blade of the turn of the century days, in a comedy that gives the bird to the gilded age.

He's that way about Rita Hayworth, the Strawberry Blonde, but his pal, Jack Carson, elopes with her, leaving Cagney to console himself with sweet, devoted Olivia DeHavilland.

In the end Cagney gets a chance to get back at Carson and to win the Strawberry Blonde, but true love triumphs and he chooses to stick with Oliva. Director Raoul Walsh, whose recent hits include such films as "They Drive By Night" and "High Sierra," has kept up the swift pace of these action hits in the new picture, only this time it's in a comedy vein. He has managed, too, to create an authentic picture of the era when a mug was used only for shaving and a racket was something you played tennis with.

"The Monster and the Lady" is a weird horror film with a background of mystery, chills and suspense. Ellen Drew is the girl who becomes involved with a gang of racketeers and is saved by the diabolical creation of an ingenious scientist.

NEW, SPARKLING REVUES OPEN ALONG BOSTON'S RIALTO

Show of Harry Drake's Is Hit of the Season

By SAM BERENSON

Our posy of the week to the lapel of Tom Maren, guiding hand of the town's popular Beachcomber, for the outstanding brilliance of his current smasheroo—"Gone With the Wind."

Here's one of the fanciest revues to adorn the Rialto this season, a show sparkling with youth and tingling with romantic beauty . . . featured in this glamorous production is that lovely song-gal, Elaine Jordan . . . and Barbara Bel Monte, exotic danseuse . . . a glorious offering that demands your calling . . . Chico Simone's Cuban band, with Nye Mayhew's swing.

A new revue moves into the smart Versailles this evening . . . a starry cast, indeedy, with an emphasis on loveliness offered by a bevy of Manhattan dancing gals . . . while the nifty trumpeting of Bobby Hackett makes stepping at the Versailles one of the town's outstanding joys . . . a swell show bet . . . A further memo to you on those gay Thursday Theatrical nights under Mickey Alpert's able direction at the Cocoanut Grove . . . one of the better take-ins of our village . . . with the certainty that the spotlight will swing to many a celebrity . . . a mighty attractive show for the week bows into this delightful spot this evening.

That fast entertainment whirls on at Blinstrub's South Boston Village . . . Here's club merriment at its gayest, color at its peak . . . there are thrill aplenty in this well-rounded bill, and for downright good entertainment we're recommending the Village this week . . . the Karl Rohde music . . . and a further note to you on those tasty Village dinners . . . We're hearing a great deal of favorable comment on the brand of razz'e-dazzle being served at Alpini's . . . an easy-to-relax-in spot . . . with the dance-able tune-spinning of the meritorious Eddie Watson crew

Lovely Madalyn White, petite musical comedy dancing star, the hilarious trio of Emmett Oldfield and Co., and Carlos and Chita, are the new faces in the latest Latin Quarter revue which, plus the Latin Quarter ballet, the Four Gentlemen, and Harry Spear, combine talents to present as colorful and enjoyable evening of entertainment as you would want to see. Tony Bruno's band and the Don Dudley quintet play for dancing . . . Harry Drake has concocted up a new super special for patrons at the colorful Blue Room of the Westminster this week . . . for loveliness blends with smart talent to account for what may well be the starriest attraction of the Blue Room's winter season . . . a bang-up show, with the reliable Jimmy McHale at the baton . . . Two more bank-roll records for Glenn Miller . . . $2000 for the Junior Prom at Southern Cal. and ditto at the University of California are top coin for these dates . . . Ada Bullock's famed restaurant now features dancing from 7 to 1 a. m. . . . an additional attraction, for the food here has always been excellent . . . one of the better dining-out spots along the Rialto . . . A line of applause to Billy Hurley for the smart way in which he has brought his log cabin into the public eye.

Bostonians visiting Alice Brewer's Skeet-O Shooting Range on Piedmont Street, opposite the Cocoanut Grove, are taking their Skeet-O rounds seriously . . . attempting to break 16 out of 20 targets in consecutive shooting . . . to become eligible to enter the first Skeet-O Shooting Tourney which will begin at the Range, Monday, March 17 . . . The Fred J. Routledge Trophy has arrived from Monroe, Michigan, where Skeet-O was first originated, and contestants can shoot for eligibility to compete in the tourney anytime between noon and two a. m. . . . Dorgan's Old Harbor House holds its positition in the affection of the stay-up set

Tops in talent is starred in the new show which makes its debut this evening at the Crawford House . . . bold billing goes to Jackie Whalen, who comes to Boston with an excellent reputation as one of the outstanding m.c.s in the country . . . The Crawford revues have provided flashy action all through the winter and there is a new gal-lige here, while the sensational favorite, Sally Keith, continues to break records . . . Joe Wagonbeck announces that next Sunday's musical offering on the tremendous Sabbath show will be Claude Thornhill's Orchestra, a rising new combo.

DEATH'S PALL OVER BROCKTON THEATER

Death's Stairs

Fire broke out in the basement of the Strand Theater in Brockton, licked its way to the auditorium and to the balcony, as fire departments of a dozen towns mobilized for the stubborn battle. This photo shows the staircase . . . leading to the balcony, now strewn with fire-charred wreckage.

Where Death Struck—On and under this balco[ny] a dozen firemen battled the raging flames in the St[rand] Theater . . . then there was a sudden hush, a bit of ceiling fell, but before the men could flee, ton[s] of steel and concrete crashed upon them in an inferno of destruction.

A Shambles

Graphically, this photo tells the story of how a dozen firemen were crushed and smothered under the falling roof . . . with other fire fighters searching in the ruins for the bodies of the men. Today's fire disaster was New England's worst this year.

THE THOUSANDS who contributed clothing to the Christmas Ship for England last December and who now see pictures of little British children wearing the warm garments realize more than ever before that there is greater joy in giving than in receiving.

TRYING ON THEIR WARM COATS
Two of Many Children Who Received Garments from Record-American-Advertiser Ship

The gratitude of one English mother, expressed in a letter addressed to the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Families Association of Cadogan Square, London, distributors of the clothing, is typical.

This mother wrote:

"From the bottom of my heart and also my husband's we thank you ever so much for your great gift to our children, who also send you their heartfelt thanks.

"I am sure that we never thought we should receive such a wonderful gift. I may add it couldn't have come at a more precious time, considering that we were blasted out of house and home three weeks back, but thank God we all escaped without a scratch.

"We also had a bomb drop less than 40 yards from us.

"Once again we thank you and sincerely hope that this terrible war will come to an end.

"The fitting of the clothes could not have been better if they had been measured by a tailor."

There has been an abundance of talk by Americans who have been content to aid Britain with elaborate words and comforting phrases.

New Englanders who enabled the Evening American, Daily Record and Sunday Advertiser to ship one thousand, one hundred and eighty-eight huge cases of clothing to the raid victims of London and other devastated areas have been more realistic.

Their kindness and charity made it possible for many a mother and her little sons and daughters to survive one of the bitterest winters in British history.

MARS AND CUPID do not walk hand in hand. In fact, the god of war and the god of love are sworn enemies, and hopes for reconciliation between the two are slim indeed.

This is the belief of Dr. Elmer Barnes, distinguished sociologist and author.

Speaking at a recent Middletown, Ct., conference, Dr. Barnes said:

"The future of marriage, like the future of everything else in American life, is closely tied up with the second World War, and the prospect of American participation therein.

"By remaining aloof from the war, American life may go on for some years, much like it has been in our generation.

"But if we enter the war and fight it through to the bitter end, the result is likely to be either a Soviet domination of the Old World, with increasing prestige of Communist ways in America, or social chaos for many decades to come."

We have already seen indications of the disruption of marriage relations which Dr. Barnes deplores.

The draft law, which does not expressly prohibit the separation of a man from his wife and children, has resulted in many married men being called for military service.

But, fortunately, the law's harmful effects have been minimized by the intelligence of local board officials who have generally deferred husbands and heads of families in the wise belief that homes and children should be protected to the fullest possible extent in peace time.

Such consideration might be neither possible nor practical if the United States made the foolish and probably fatal mistake of plunging its resources and manpower into the European war.

HOW MUCH would a night club have to pay for Betty Grable and George Raft as a dance team? Boxcar figures, no doubt. Yet Betty and George dance together at Hollywood clubs almost every night for the fun of it. And they certainly are something to observe when they go into a rhumba . . . And also how about Fred Allen, whose real name is John F. Sullivan?

ASKING: Q—Did you sing at college, and what did you sing? A—We sang among other things such ditties as "I Had a Little Dog and His Name Was Buster," "Drink a Highball at Nightfall," "Sailor Brown of Salem," "You're Welcome Tonight at the Ball, It's Given by the Lady Hack Drivers, a Fine Organization Withal," and "I Ain't Got No Money, That's What Bothers Me." Q—How many famous ballroom dance teams of the past can you recall? A—Offhand I'll say Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, Joan Sawyer and Rudolph Valentino, Bonnie Glass and Clifton Webb, Maurice and Florence Walton, Fred and Adele Astaire. Of the moderns, I like the kids from the Seville and Velox and Yolanda the beat.

CURSE OF GARIBALDI: Representatives of the Nazi Gestapo are swarming over Italy trying to stall off a revolution. A resident of Naples was arrested and sentenced to be shot for a reference to the "curse of Garibaldi." One of the last things Garibaldi, idol of Italy then and now, said was: "But if ever England should be so circumstanced as to require the help of an ally cursed be that Italian who would not step forward in her defense." Italo Balbo once quoted this saying in the presence of Mussolini. A few weeks later Balbo was killed in an accident.

A SANTA FE railroad official, discussing my suggestion regarding through trains from New York to Los Angeles and San Francisco said in part: "I recall you made us build a new station at Santa Ana, Cal." The campaign the gentleman refers to may hold the record for brevity in that respect. All I said was: "To be in keeping with the appearance of the railroad station, the name of Santa Ana should be changed to Shanty Ana."

-:- MY DAY

GOLDEN BEACH, Fla., Sunday—Yesterday morning we had one of those heavy wind storms which come in gusts in the tropics. After lunch it cleared sufficiently for us to walk some distance along the beach and play about in the water for a while.

I find myself easily adapted to being lazy in the rain or in the sunshine and the colors in the ocean fascinates me at all times. Yesterday afternoon the water was green inshore and the farther out you looked, the deeper the green became until at the edge of the horizon, it looked a dark green emerald. This morning the shades run from pale blue to deep violet.

We watched five pelicans flying low in formation over the water yesterday afternoon. I am sure they play follow-the-leader, for when the leader dips all the others do. I wondered whether there was some rule about the way they caught the fish, otherwise it seemed as though the leader would grow fat and the others would grow lean.

I FINISHED James Hilton's "Random Harvest" yesterday. In the play of the imagination it reminds one a little of "Lost Horizon." The man who is always seeking his lost memories, is not very different from the rest of us, for most of us go through life seeking something.

We do not always find it, so that we can end our tale with the happy cry: "It is not too late." Mr. Hilton seems very familiar with the baffling situation that faces most people, either because of some lack in themselves, or surrounding circumstances which makes the accomplishment of their desires unattainable.

Last night I read through the scenario for a motion picture written by Robert Van Sittert, an Englishman. It gives a remarkable picture of Czechoslovakia before and after Munich. Finally, it leaves you with the assurance that the people may be subjugated, but so long as the thing we call the soul of a people lives on, even in the hearts of its children, there is inevitably a day of resurrection and liberation.

I WAS GLAD to hear over the radio last night that the lease-lend bill had passed the Senate. This morning I read the text of the bill aloud from the newspaper, so that we would know just what form was being submitted to the House before the bill goes to the President for signature. It seems to me that Congress has properly safeguarded its own responsibility and I hope a united nation will speed up our industrial output.

LAUGHTON RETURNS TO COMEDY

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 10—Charles Laughton will return to comedy roles in "Almost an Angel" . . . After 25 years in the theater, Ruth Gordon made her debut with a swing-band—with Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra . . . Jack Dempsey's will hold a midnight supper for the British American Ambulance Corps March 25. Jack will preside, and will have sports figures participating in a revue . . . One of the paintings recently sent here for sale by the Nazis is a Rembrandt from the Uffizi Gallery in Florence, Italy. They can't get an art dealer to handle the sale . . . Jim Farley will be the principal speaker at the Jackson Day dinner in New York.

DRAMA DEPT.: Seven persons of Broadway have organized themselves as a student group and joined the drama class at Benno Schneider's famed school for actors . . . The seven who will take acting lessons from Schneider are Vera Zorina, now a movie and musical comedy star; Arnold Moss, who won good notices for his recent appearances in "Fifth Column," "Journey to Jerusalem" and the current "Flight to the West"; Arlene Francis, the radio star who was featured this season in "Journey to Jerusalem"; Katharine Locke, who has costarred with Franchot Tone and Maurice Evans; Jessica Tandy, Hume Cronyn, whose performance in "Retreat to Pleasure" was hailed by all the reviewers, and Martin Gabel, the producer, director and the star of "Medicine Show" . . . The last direction job of Benno Schneider, their illustrious drama teacher, was "Liliom." It flopped.

SOCIAL NOTES: Margaret Bourke-White reveals how the aides of Ismet Inonu, President of Turkey, can always determine, in advance, how a diplomatic conference is progressing . . . Inonu has one deaf ear. And when he confers with a visiting diplomat whose request he wishes to deny, the President of Turkey literally turns a deaf ear to the visitor.

EMPLOYMENT DEPT.: Six years ago the Clymas Troupe of Apache dancers were featured in the vaudeville houses and the big cafes of Broadway. One member of the troupe, Leslie Berger, preferred a career which offered steadier employment and a more stable future than could be found in vaudeville. Berger retired from show business and became a waiter at Reuben's restaurant, where now he has risen to the post of captain . . . The Clymas Troupe now is filling an engagement at Leon and Eddie's on West 52d. An important member of the troupe—the knife-thrower—became ill and his partners worried about having to close . . . They solved their problem by inviting Berger to rejoin. And so Leslie Berger now has two jobs—doubling between the floor show at Leon and Eddie's and the waiter's shift at Reuben's restaurant.

MUSIC DEPT.: Gene Fowler had been visiting the cafes with Harry Revel, the song writer, and singing the new Revel-Adamson song of the RAF, "Wings of England" . . . "This song will be a tremendous hit," Fowler vows. "Not that I'm good at picking hit songs. I once bet that a crazy song called 'Yes/We Have No Bananas,' would sell a million copies . . . But the next time I tried predicting about songs was on the beach of Fire Island, when Billy Rose sang his newest—a thing called 'I Found a Million Dollar Baby in a 5 & 10c Store' . . . I told Billy: 'The public can't be that mad, to go for such a song. If that's a hit I'll drown myself right here' . . . Two months later Rose walked up to me on the beach and said: 'Gene, I'm here to see you drown.'"

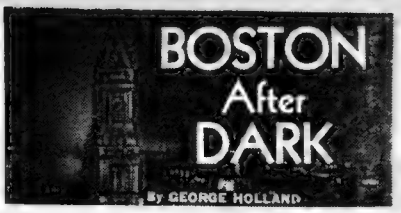
FOREIGN DISPATCH: Paula LeCler, the foreign correspondent, visited Bucharest three times in recent months. She came there each time to cover the story of the change in prime ministers. And she always reserved rooms at the Athenee Palace—the hotel where all the newspaper men, diplomats and the usual Balkan spies congregate . . . At her last visit, to cover the Iron Guard's emergence to power, Miss LeCler again went to the Athenee Palace and saw the same hotel concierge who had served her before "Are you still here?" she greeted him . . . "Yes," he beamed. "Ministers change, but concierges—never."



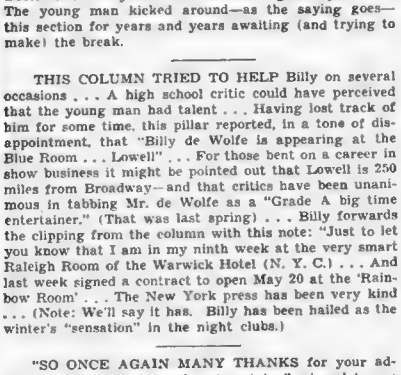
MONDAY MUSINGS: Once there was a Palace Theater, but we all know what happened to vaudeville . . . A booking at the Palace in the good old days was tantamount to a form of social security . . . The Palace, however, is of the past, and vaudeville seems so dead that comics are not now bothering to make jokes about what happened to it. (A bad sign.)

NEW YORK NOW HAS A PLACE named the Rainbow Room . . . It is on top of Radio City, and a growing reputation for fastidiousness in selecting talent to amuse its customers has won for the Rainbow Room a certain distinction which reflects favorably on the artists who are lucky enough to get a booking there . . . No, the Rainbow Room is not the 1941 equivalent of the Palace . . . But it's the nearest thing to a shrine that the hard-working troupers of the cabaret circuit have . . . So what? . . . Simply that Billy de Wolfe of Quincy is booked for the Rainbow Room, and the young man's debut will occur May 20. (That acts are booked so far ahead will give you an idea of the Rainbow Room's importance.)

THAT BILLY DE WOLFE is going to play the R. R. in May holds some significance for the host of ambitious Bostonians who yearn for a career in grease paint . . . The young man kicked around—as the saying goes—this section for years and years awaiting (and trying to make) the break.

THIS COLUMN TRIED TO HELP Billy on several occasions . . . A high school critic could have perceived that the young man had talent . . . Having lost track of him for some time, this pillar reported, in a tone of disappointment, that "Billy de Wolfe is appearing at the Blue Room . . . Lowell" . . . For those bent on a career in show business it might be pointed out that Lowell is 250 miles from Broadway—and that critics have been unanimous in tabbing Mr. de Wolfe as a "Grade A big time entertainer." (That was last spring) . . . Billy forwards the clipping from the column with this note: "Just to let you know that I am in my ninth week at the very smart Raleigh Room of the Warwick Hotel (N. Y. C.) . . . And last week signed a contract to open May 20 at the 'Rainbow Room' . . . The New York press has been very kind . . . (Note: We'll say it has. Billy has been hailed as the winter's "sensation" in the night clubs.)

"SO ONCE AGAIN MANY THANKS for your advice . . . First time I took out certain 'business' in my routine, and the second I left the towns and headed for the Big City." The case of Billy de Wolfe makes the point better than chapters of advice . . . And the point is that success in show business can come only if the seeker for fame and fortune heads for the market places. There are only two and the other is Hollywood . . . Two



ETHEL ALLEN
She made the big time

more instances of how true this axiom is are playing important Boston night clubs right now.

ONE IS PRETTY. YOUNG ETHEL ALLEN, whose legal name is Van Porte, but whose maternal family name is Hagerty . . . She will make her debut at the Versailles tonight.

BUT ETHEL HAD TO GO to New York to get her chance . . . Boston wouldn't even let her sing for the bosses, although Mickey Alpert heard her—and recommended her—last summer . . . Another is Jo Andrews, a Brookline girl, whose family name is Alexrod . . . Jo is dancing at the Mayfair . . . But she left the family fireside to struggle out of the chorus toward recognition in a knockdown struggle with her destiny that has been going on for several years . . . Playwrights or actors, the boys and girls have to go all-out to win a career . . . And New York is the mart. (But don't go there broke.)

Hollywood Today

BARBARA STANWYCK GOIN' GREAT GUNS

By Louella O. Parsons

Barbara Stanwyck

HOLLYWOOD, March 10—Barbara Stanwyck is hotter than a firecracker at the moment with "The Lady Eve" getting rave reviews and "Meet John Doe" coming up. Never let it be said that Warners are letting any grass grow under their feet tempting the red-headed Mrs. Robert Taylor to make another picture for them. The plum they're holding out is "The Fortunes of Mamie Q" by Lester Cohen, who just sold M-G-M "The Dam."

Cohen is coming out to write the script on "Mamie Q," which is about an ambitious girl who lives on the wrong side of the stockyards. This should be right up Barbara's street—because while she enjoyed going glamorous in "The Lady Eve" she really likes to play these down to earth gals who know all the answers

ANN SOTHERN

STRAIGHT from New York comes the tip that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has bought "Du Barry Was a Lady," the famed Ethel Merman musical, for Ann Sothern. The price paid was $80,000 and interestingly, the play which brought Betty Grable to fame, gave Bert Lahr added success and made Ethel Merman's name almost a household word, is the third of Buddy De Sylva's musicals to be sold for the movies. "Louisiana Purchase" was bought by Paramount and "Panama Hattie" is owned by Metro. That, too stars Ann Sothern so if you don't think Leo the Lion is building that Sothern gal, you've got another think coming. Think of all that gorgeous Cole Porter music in Du Barry. Annie can sing, although she never has on the screen and with two stage hits bought for her, she'll be a Merman of the movies and no pun intended

FOR THE FIRST TIME in many a day Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt are interested in making a motion picture. I talked with Alfred at the Basil Rathbone party and he said that he and Lynn would not be averse to bringing their stage play "There Shall Be No Night" to the screen, if the right opportunity presents itself. The fans may remember the Lunts made one picture "The Guardsman" for M-G-M and while it was produced before motion pictures had reached their present degree of perfection, it was hailed as an artistic effort. Both Lynn and Alfred love Hollywood and would like nothing better than to spend some time here. And Hollywood would like nothing better than having them.

AN INTERESTING STORY concerns Karen Vern, the girl signed recently by Warner Brothers. Warners are so intrigued that they are sitting her down with Script Writer Robert Rosson who will whip up Karen's own life story in movie form and she will play her adventures. Irving Asher brought Miss Vern to Hollywood about a year ago from England after she had gone through unbelievable experiences escaping from her native Germany. She is a member of the famous Beckstein family of Berlin, internationally known as manufacturers of pianos. Her story will be titled "Journey From Danger."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Paulette Goddard and Charlie Chaplin's appearance at the Lunt-Fontanne show ought to silence a few gossips for a little while; Gloria Dickson is sporting a huge new diamond ring put on her finger by Ralph Murphy whom she will marry in June; her ex, Perc Westmore, and the former Mrs. Donald Novis, also have a date at the altar so everybody's happy; Stirling Hayden's secret passion is Pat Morison and some day I'll tell you how I know about it; the Nazareth orphans or benefitting greatly by all these shows given at Ciro's for them. Abbott and Costello put on a honey last night; Somerset Maugham has taken the Union Pacific streamliner for New York; the most surprising twosome of the week-end was Helen Gilbert and Vic Orsatti at the Scheherazade. Everyone thought they had cooled off and that Helen was getting ready to marry someone else; Willis Hunt, Jr., formerly wed to Carole Landis, at a tete-a-tete dinner with Martha O'Driscoll. Well, I'll say Willis has good taste—Carole is a beauty and so is Martha; Alice Faye and John Conti in a cocktail-for-two mood at the Club Car; Countess Di Frassa flew to New York to spend a month with her brother, Bert Taylor. She had a farewell party given her by her house-guest, Mrs. Barclay.

3 Billions Needed To Rush British Aid

el to be the first defense articles slated for delivery immediately after the bill becomes law, with food supplies to follow.

F. D. TO ACT QUICKLY

Once it is signed into law the President is expected to make swift use of the authority thus gained to sell, transfer title to, exchange, lease, lend or otherwise dispose of arms, planes, ships, tanks, and all other armaments and food supplies.

Signing of the bill, too, will clear the way for him to ask Congress for the funds necessary to carry out the program. He also may announce promptly just how the program will be administered.

The bill vests full authority in him. To decide broad policy questions, however, he is expected to work closely with a cabinet committee of Secretaries Hull, Stimson, Knox and Morgenthau, with Harry Hopkins former Commerce Secretary, aide. He is also expected to confer with the Office of Production Management on matters of production, and through Army and Navy chiefs on the release of existing materials.

BULK GOES TO BRITAIN

The great bulk of supplies, however, will go to embattled Britain with all speed possible. One authority said the first weapons to be furnished will be a number of Navy motor patrol boats, 60-mile an hour torpedo-carrying craft, and probably some submarine chasers. Planes for the British war program, completed and needing only a minimum of law to be made effective.

The government men in the Administration present plans for helping the British plans which President Roosevelt has been forming with cabinet and other advisers for several weeks—was reported to be foodstuffs, release of which the bill specifically authorizes. Arrangements for shipping these commodities were said to have been perfected by the Secretaries of Agriculture, War and Navy.

Apparently the job of transporting U. S. supplies and equipment across the ocean will be up to the British. The question of delivery at either United States or Canadian ports, just as now is the present, on the munitions and other armaments now being bought in this country.

The President is retaining maximum control against German air and sea attack. Protection remains a vital aim for Britain, but it is expected that a large fleet of 200 cargo vessels, the acquisition of which Congress recently provided funds will be taken up to be on a lease-lend basis. Most of these vessels are scheduled for completion this year.

SEEK VESSELS

Diplomatic sources reported continuing efforts of quarters here of means by which more than 200 foreign flag vessels tied up in American ports may be taken over and made available to Britain.

As for transportation of supplies in ships flying the American flag, the British aid bill specifically states that nothing in this act shall be construed to authorize or permit the authorization of the entry of any American vessel into combat areas which, under the President's neutrality proclamations include all the waters around England and the northern European coast.

The small naval vessels and other types of munitions to be sent to the British in the next few weeks will of necessity come from existing military and naval stores or those now being built for early delivery. The bill empowers the President to release up to $1,300,000,000 of such equipment.

The other billions which the program will require for munitions manufacture must be requested of Congress by the President. One authority reported that Mr. Roosevelt would ask, within a short time after signing the bill, for at least $1,000,000,000 in cash and $1,000,000,000 in contract authority.

It was understood, however, that some of his advisers had urged a request for larger sums, their recommendations ranging up to $5,000,000,000 in cash and an additional $5,000,000,000 in authority for future expenditures.

Londoners Fly Old Glory, Cawn't Get Our Politics

LONDON, March 10 (AP)—United States flags were broken out today in various sections of London to show British satisfaction at Senate passage of the aid bill.

Official comment was withheld, however, pending final action.

The press glowed with praise for the United States, but the attitude of the average Briton in stores, government offices and hotel lobbies was expressed in the comment:

"What strange politics you have over there."

The thing that interested them was a picture featured in morning papers showing Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, leader of the opposition to the bill, and Sens. Alben W. Barkley and Walter F. George, leaders for the bill, shaking hands in a friendly fashion after weeks of heated language.

Could Cleopatra Drink a Pearl with Stomach Ulcer Pains?

An intriguing story of Cleopatra is the one where an admirer praised the beauty of two of her pearls, whereupon she dropped one into a glass of wine and drank it. She would hardly have done this had she suffered after-eating pains. Those who are distressed with stomach or ulcer pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloat and other conditions caused by excess acid should try a 15c box of Udga Tablets. They must help or money refunded. At drug stores everywhere.

DIES IN DRIVE TO OUST REDS, NAZI FROM DEFENSE PLANTS

WASHINGTON, March 10 (AP)—Rep. Martin Dies (D.) of Texas said today he would call on President Roosevelt to initiate a "nation-wide drive" for the discharge from government service and defense industries of persons active in political organizations under control of totalitarian powers.

The chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities also said he would urge the President to insist that labor unions oust Communist and Nazi leaders.

If his suggestion to the President fails to bring results, Dies said, he either would introduce legislation to force the discharge of such persons or would offer a resolution stating that it is the policy of Congress that such changes occur.

Dies said:

"I shall make an urgent plea to the President to immediately take the initiative in a nation-wide drive to discharge from government service and from all national defense industries every person who has been active in political organizations under the control of totalitarian powers unless such person can give satisfactory assurances that he or she has been duped.

"The President can use the power of letting contracts and of spending public funds so as to secure the general cooperation of industry.

"I shall also urge the President to insist that labor unions immediately oust Communist and Nazi leaders upon the penalty that any union which refuses will not be recognized for collective bargaining purposes.

"The President should insist that the National Labor Relations Board make it clear that the discharge of any such person will be upheld by the NLRB.

"I am convinced that it is imperative for the President to take this course at once to save the national defense program from sabotage and to avoid the mistakes which led to the downfall of France and other democracies."

You Can Be Beautiful

Magic Lotion Revives Skin

By ARLINE GOULD

IT'S LIKE reaching for the moon . . . to try to keep the fleeting look of youngness in a complexion . . . and now and then, but very rarely, we come across a cosmetic . . . which comes closest to making the magnificent gesture . . . to bringing down the moon within your actual reach . . . and here . . . is one . . .

Touch a baby's skin . . . you're instantly aware of the natural moisture . . . which makes you think of petals. If you could make even a half-hearted accomplishment of keeping that humidity in your own skin . . . you'd keep to yourself the look of youngness so long that you wouldn't blame your friends for feeling greed and envy at the sight of your firm, rose-flushed complexion . . .

With seven drops . . . of a most precious liquid . . . a silvery flask of which not so very long ago cost 40 DOLLARS . . . and was the sole property of a famous physician . . . you can give your skin this baby-humidity . . . Even more important . . . this doesn't last just five minutes . . . or 30 . . . but all day long!

It's called . . . simply . . . a lotion . . . with an astral-sounding number . . . and though you can't call it a make-up base, or a stimulator, or a youth-oil it does each one of these things better than anything else we know . . . it has that three-fold action on your skin.

It puts dew in your complexion . . . to last all day, no matter what your skin is exposed to. It literally bars lines and wrinkles from cracking into your skin, because the moisture it lends is absolute against them. Though it is non-greasy, thin, colorless, tart-fragranced . . . It has certain oils in it . . . and these, in combination with your own set up a perfect defense against age.

Not only does it soften the skin instantly, to a sleek, satin texture . . . but it brings up the lightest of roseate tints just under the surface, to give a transparent look . . . youth, undeniable and tempting.

If you'd like to learn about this extraordinary, precious lotion . . . which prevents wrinkles by giving natural humidity to the skin . . . phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, weekdays except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

YOUR DEFENSE against age . . . and even in the beauty world, Arline Gould admits, there aren't too many such defenses which may be put in the sensation class . . . may turn out to be a startling lotion . . . a retriever of youth-humidity to keep a complexion from bowing to wrinkles . . . to keep it looks as shiningly firm and dew-moist as that of Susan Hayward, above. Arline Gould tells of this precious find today.

Don't Be a Dance Hermit

The girl who doesn't go dancing much—and so doesn't think it worthwhile to keep up with smart steps! What a plight is hers when an invitation does come. A rhumba's played first thing and she's left sighing, "Oh, I can't dance THAT!"

Don't let a bid catch you napping. Practice your dancing at home with diagrams and directions. Then you'll shine when your chance comes, be asked to lots of dances.

So you'll appear really "in the know" when you dance the rhumba, learn its special technique. Partners stand somewhat farther apart than for other dances. Steps are shorter and taken with the feet flat on the floor. But the rule, "Weight on the balls of your feet," holds true for the rhumba, too—if you want to keep easy to lead!

Now try our diagram for the basic rhumba, swaying hips gracefully at every step. Count 1—Quickly take a short step to side on left foot. AND—Quickly close with right foot. 2—Slowly step forward on left foot. Pause. On counts 3 AND 4 reverse the figure, starting with right foot.

And there's nothing like being able to dance a waltz or a fox-trot really well, if you want to win the hearts of the stag line.

It's easy to become a star on the dance floor with the help of our 40-page booklet, Social Dancing Self-Taught!

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, Social Dancing Self-Taught, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th st., New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Cooking

Tasty Dishes Possible in Lent

By MARTHA LEE

This time of year more than any other we need to work out new menus, full of nourishment and vitamins; and if we try to keep Lent more or less strictly, we find sea foods, cheese, vegetables, fruits, plus fresh eggs give us just the variety we want.

Even the old reliable canned salmon takes on glamour when prepared or served with fresh eggs, and a salmon ring filled with creamed hard-cooked eggs is so attractive and colorful that it can be served to the most finicky guests.

SALMON RING

1 lb. can red salmon
Salt and pepper
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tbsp. grated onion
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
1½ cups scalded milk
3 tbsp. butter
3 tbsp. flour
3 eggs

Drain the salmon and take out the skin and bones. Then flake it with a fork. Season with salt and pepper, lemon juice, grated onion and chopped parsley. Mix well. Make a sauce of the scalded milk, butter and flour. Beat eggs until light and add to the salmon with the sauce. If more seasoning is needed, add it now. Grease a ring mold very thoroughly, and fill with the salmon mixture. Set it in a pan of hot water and bake about 50 minutes in a moderate oven (325 deg. F.). When done, loosen the edges of the salmon, turn onto a hot platter and let stand a minute or two. Then lift off the mold, and fill the center with creamed hard-cooked eggs, which have been sliced. Season this sauce with salt, pepper and a suspicion of mustard to give tone.

Another method of serving fresh eggs with salmon calls for

1 lb. can salmon
¼ cup soft bread crumbs
¾ cup chili sauce
5 eggs
Salt and pepper

Combine flaked salmon, bread crumbs, chili sauce and one egg, and mix well. Place in well-greased muffin tins, leaving a cup-like hollow in the center. Bake in a 350 deg. F. oven for 10 minutes. Remove from oven and drop a whole egg into each. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Return to oven and bake for 15 minutes, or until eggs are set. Serve on a platter garnished with parsley and lemon slices.

For luncheon soon, cook a package of the quick-frozen asparagus according to the directions on the package. Drain. Melt ¼ cup butter, add 2 chopped hard-boiled eggs and ½ teaspoon curry powder.

Pour into a sauce boat, sprinkle with paprika and serve with the asparagus garnished with sliced hard-cooked eggs. It will give a spring-like lift to the day.

Or try some of these suggestions when planning the Lenten meals:

POACHED EGGS FLORENTINE

2 cups cooked spinach
4 poached eggs
1 cup cream sauce
3 tbsp. grated American or Parmesan cheese

Cook spinach, drain from water, put on hot serving plates, arrange in four nests. Put a poached egg in the center of each nest. Pour well-seasoned white sauce over all and sprinkle with grated cheese, American, if a mild cheese is liked; Parmesan if a spicier cheese is preferred. This makes a nice luncheon or supper dish.

BLONDIE — A Rude Awakening

The Wise Bride

By Maureen Fleming

AFTER all, Mary and Don were still on their honeymoon. They had only been married three months. The cottage in Kingston was just half finished. She would have preferred waiting until they were settled, before having any guests.

But big-hearted Don would insist upon inviting his best friend, "Dorgie" for a week-end of fishing. The season in New Jersey had just started.

"Mary is the best sport in the world," he overpoweringly assured Dorgie, as he talked to him on the long distance telephone, "she'll love it. What? Can the fish? Boy, she can do anything. I tell you, she's the best sport in the world."

Now the only thing Mary disliked about fishing, was catching fish! But she determined not to let her husband down. He had bragged about her prowess to his best friend Rupert Dorgland, known to his Princeton classmates as "Dorgie."

Mary was born and brought up in New Jersey. As a matter of fact, her old home was just near the hatchery in Hackettstown. All her family loved fishing. But up to this time, Mary had not been interested.

Dorgie arrived on Friday for dinner. He was in rare form. He had a lot of baggage, just for two days, thought Mary a little apprehensively! But it turned out to be just every last word in tackle, boots, net, old pants and what not, for fishing.

Their conversation during dinner was entirely about the exquisite, elusive quality of trout. The roast beef which the smiling colored maid served looked horribly bestial. However, it was a gay little dinner party. They went to bed early and next morning they were all up with the birds

Thousands of the happy little creatures chirped in the verdant greenery, while Don sneaked out and grabbed as many worms as his tin belt-box would hold!

"Ignominious," was Dorgie's word for anyone who could stoop so low as to catch trout that way. He was a purist in the real sense of the word. He used nothing but flies.

Mary decorated her jaunty Fedora with a few gaudy flies. She wore old riding togs, using rubber boots for wading. The rod, net, basket and belt-can she had borrowed from her brother.

"Don't tell me you use worms!" cried Dorgie loftily as he eyed the little tin box at her waist.

Mary straightened and looked him in the eye.

"I do not," she said challengingly, "and what's more, don't you worry about me—in the woods!"

Don was so excited he paid no attention to anyone, not even to his bride. He gulped some hot coffee, and hurried Mary into the car. Dorgie took his own roadster. They agreed to meet later in the day at home with their catch.

Mary and Don knew that he and a few other "insiders" were going to be at the village cafeteria at that ungodly hour. They called out to Dorgie, "Let's stop at the cafeteria on our way and find out some of the lowdown!"

MANY "INSIDERS"

The purist sniffed disdainfully at the idea. But he did condescend to drop in. After a very mysterious huddle in which they were told exactly where the hatchery had dumped some of its treasure, they disbanded. They went their separate ways in separate cars. But somehow or other they all landed in the same spot in the woods! So had a lot of other "insiders." Both sides of that stream were practically solidly flanked with fisher folk of every age, sex and condition.

They kept moving around to other brooks until finally they found one where they could get elbow room. That really was not such a bad stream: the Musconetcong. Only about ten or twelve others in, beside themselves, and they settled down to fish it in earnest. Hours went by, Dorgie oblivious of the world, casting his fly up and down stream with rare and expert grace.

You could actually see the trout! But they were not rising — for some strange reason. Dorgie seemed perfectly happy. Although he did not get a bite he was as noncommittal as an Indian, just wading astream, casting his different flies and taking no notice of anybody.

Don could be heard swearing lustily or giving wild whoops as one trout after another got away from him.

"How're you doing with your revolting bait, Don?" Dorgie called out when he was near enough.

"Never mind about that," laughed Don throwing him a foxy glance. "Go on and use your flies, feller, but old Don gets fish—or else—"

Mary said nothing. Stealthily, she threaded her bait on the hook, quickly dropped it in the stream right where she stood on the bank. This proved to be a better idea than wading around. Immediately, she felt a tug at the line. That pulling tug went through every nerve in her body. Then, flip, flip, flip in the air as a shimmering trout tried to get off the hook.

"Pull 'im in!" yelled an old fisherman who stood near.

This she did as if she were pulling in the lifeline. When the fish was actually in her hand, she was suddenly taken with what might be called "Trout Fever." Chills went up and down her spine. But she held on like grim death to the slipperiest fish in captivity, while she tried to get the hook it had evidently swallowed down to its tail. And what's more, she tried to do this without fainting on the spot, or disemboweling the fish!

Her jaws hurt in a painful effort to smile as she held up the hookless trout for the old fisherman's praises. He came over, took the trout, tapped it on the head with his ruler, put dewy wet ferns in her basket. Then he laid the nine-inch corpse upon them. With a broad grin, the woodsman then returned to his rod.

"First of the day," smiled Mary, like a veteran.

"Wall, ye're lucky to get any—with all thet fancy paraphernalia ye got with you thar!" said he, dubiously.

"Take a look at this!"

The gaudy flies sticking in her hat band suddenly felt like drum-major plumes as he squinted up at them.

"There's plenty of fish in here all right," she said in the most professional matter-of-fact tone she could summon.

"Yes and they're agoin' to stay nice and cozy thar, too—nearly all of 'em!"

"How do you account for the strange behavior of these fish, sir?" she asked innocently.

"Well sir, these here hatchery fish around here, it seems like they jest hold conventions. They're so stuffed with liver they don't have to eat for a month, and when they see some poor saps sinking a worm or casting a fly around here, why they jest laugh out loud!"

"Ah! I see!" she said brightly. "It's all or nothing. Well, well! Just as I thought." She moved away and went to find another brook.

Mary fished as if it were a matter of life and death. They all met, as planned, about 4 o'clock. Don's frowning face told his story before he spoke.

"Lovely day!" declared Dorgie, as he gave his fly case an affectionate pat, "even though I didn't get one!"

Don shook his head disconsolately. "Neither did I. Never saw such fish in my life. But never mind," he added wistfully, "we'll do better next time!"

"What do you mean, 'We,' darling?" inquired Mary. She opened her basket. "Take a look at this!"

MARY CONFESSES

They both stared as if a miracle had been performed.

"Ye gods!" cried Don incredulously. "Why you must have caught your limit, darling"

"Naturally!" she laughed, and with a flourish stirred the ten shiners with her ruler.

"Didn't I tell you Mary is the most wonderful girl in the world?" Don demanded.

Then Mary's conscience stood up and smote her. How could anyone look into that honest face of Don's and not tell him the truth? For a moment she hesitated. What if she were going to disillusion Don—shame him before his friend. She must break the news gently.

"Don," she confessed, "I—I am not a purist—can you, could you forgive me?"

"What's the matter darling—you look pale."

Then Mary explained. She had used the slices of liver for bait!'

They both stared at her. After a few moments. Don burst out laughing and took her in his arms.

"We all need a drink." he cried and brought out the canteen.

"Here's to truth!" toasted Dorgie, "and God bless you, Mary. That is real sportsmanship!"

"And here's to catching 'contented trout' in Darkest New Jersey!" Mary retaliated, drank her cocktail, and gave Don a kiss.

That war is spreading like fur on a frightened cat and I'm just wondering if anybody got the brass ring to a carousel in the mail.

It looks more serious than Papa Dionne when the doctor held up a hand instead of a finger.

One thing I know about international scrimmages is that they start by pushing ambassadors and consuls around like deck shuffleboards.

It's shadow-boxing with two silhouettes, one of which isn't fooling.

The United States will stand for about everything but we must get sore when the garbage makes a round trip on the dumb-waiter.

And when we get started we are just as determined as the old lady in the flivver who ran out of gasoline and finished the last eleven miles on her will power.

At the present time we are like the little tough darky in that great comedy "Shuffle Along." The big bully says, "I'm going to climb on yo' back an' there ain't nothin' goin' to stop me."

The little fellow pulls out a big razor and says, "I can't stop yo' from climin' on—but I can sho' help yo' to get off."

That's the way I feel about threats of invasion. We can certainly speed the arriving guest.

That's about all I can tell you right now. But don't get impatient and I will do better. Remember, folks, this is only my second World War.

Coaches Jones, Neyland To Don Army Uniforms

By BOB CONSIDINE

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10—The brass hats of the War Department soon will order two of the country's leading football coaches to get back to work.

BIFF JONES

The coaches are Majors Lawrence "Biff" Jones, of the University of Nebraska, and Bob Neyland, of the University of Tennessee. Both are retired and have brought tremendous renown to the colleges which now hire them.

Officers in their same category are about to be called back into the service, and this business of Army officers coaching outside teams is washed up until the world is at peace again. Jones and Neyland have remained on the Army's pension list while receiving (and more than earning) their top salaries as grid coaches.

Until the present emergency arose, Jones and Neyland were in the position of being able to get back into the Army simply by volunteering. In a very short time, that will be changed. They, and other officers in that category, some of them making a lot of money in important business positions, will be ordered back into uniform, at the modest prevailing wage scale.

There is some debate now going on in the War Department as to what rank Jones and Neyland will receive when they report back to duty. Some Army bigwigs suggested that they come back only as majors, though their former classmates at West Point are now mostly lieutenant-colonels. However, they'll probably rate that higher ranking when they return, assuming that neither resigns from the Army in the meantime.

Jones Team Won Big Six Conference Title

Jones, whose Nebraska football team won the Big Six Conference this year and went on to play in a thrilling Rose Bowl game, has been one of the most successful coaches in the game. His Army teams, in the late 1920's and early 1930's were great powers in football. He had no appetite for the passive life of an Army officer when his tour of duty as West Point ended. So he retired and, from among many offers, accepted the post of head coach at Louisiana State University, then being personally run by the late Huey Long.

His battles with Long wrote a memorable page in football history. To the eternal credit of the Army and himself, he refused to be pushed around by Long—at a period in the aromatic history of Louisiana when it was extremely unhealthy to combat the Kingfish.

Hegquit L. S. U., after a fine record and moved on to Oklahoma, where he developed a team which went on to meet Neyland's Tennessee team in the Orange Bowl. From Oklahoma, Jones moved on to Nebraska, where his club lost only to unbeaten Minnesota during the regular season.

As for Neyland, his record indicates that he has been the best football coach in the country for a decade. Or at least has had the best teams. He began coaching Tennessee as a hobby. It was a sideline for his duties as an Army Engineer assigned to river and harbor work. When he became what might be called "too famous" one of the old militarists at the War Department had him sent to Panama for a year, and Tennessee all but folded as a grid power.

Grid Prospects Bright for 1941 Season

But Neyland retired after a year and came back to Knoxville to take charge once again. His clubs finished the regular season in 1940 with a record of 33 straight victories.

Each coach has a crack team coming up for 1941.

Maj. Ralph Sasse was sent from West Point, where he coached, to Mississippi State to teach military science and tactics. But the old itch was too great to overcome. He took over the football club, too, and built up a great grid machine which leaped into prominence in the middle '30's with victories over Alabama and Army. But Sasse will not be affected by the impending War Department order, as he has resigned.

Jones will go back to Field Artillery and Neyland, of course, to the Engineers. They now make in the region of $10,000 a year as successful coaches, plus a pension plan based on a percentage of their former pay as active officers. If they come back as majors they will make about half of their present football salaries.

BRUINS CINCH TO ANNEX HOCKEY TITLE, SAYS IRVIN

Somewhat dejected after the 8 to 0 trouncing his battered Canadiens had taken from the Bruins, Dick Irvin, who has done a great job with the invaders all year, ruefully admitted that the Bruins were power laden and that they would sew up the league championship at the expense of Toronto tomorrow night.

"I don't believe the Bruins are eight goals better than my club," said Irvin, "but they're easily the class of the league.

"Our gang beat Toronto last Thursday night and the Leafs just haven't got the power or the free skating ability that the Bruins display. Art Ross really has an outfit."

And Irvin isn't alone in his opinion. Art Ross feels the same and said after the game that a win over Toronto will clinch the title and went on to say that he expected his gang to turn the trick at the expense of the Leafs here tomorrow night.

At no time this year have the Canadiens looked more pathetic. It might have been that they were playing their third game in four nights and it could possibly have been the kid goalie in the nets.

BRUINS REAL HOT

But the majority of the 11,000 who were on hand preferred to believe that the Bruins were really "hot." Whatever the cause—the locals just romped and the boys had a field day as far as individual scoring was concerned.

No less than 11 Bruins figured in the scoring with only Reardon, Crawford and Wiseman drawing blanks.

Bill Cowley with three assists was high scorer for the night. These three assists brought Cowboy's total in that department up to 41 and his total points to 55 which assures him of the N. H. L. scoring championship.

Behind Cowley came Bobby Bauer and Stoney Jackson with a pair of goals and Dit Clapper who rang up a goal also picked up an assist. The others who broke into the scoring column picked up a point by either scoring or assisting.

It really wasn't a case of individuals last night, it was the Bruins as a whole—they were just unbeatable.

BIBEAULT NERVOUS

Never have the Bruins looked more impressive than they were during those two first periods. They just ran away from the tired Canadiens and the ease with which they ran up seven soft goals made many of the fans wonder how they missed doubling that figure.

Paul Bibeaut, the amateur goalie brought up from the Royal Rifles last week was nervous and the smart stick handling Bruins made him commit himself time and again.

BOBBY FAILS . . . The Bruins indulged in a tune-up for their game with Toronto, Tuesday night, by crushing the Canadiens last night at the Boston Garden, 8 to 0. The score might have been 20 had not Art Ross put on the damper. The team is picked to whip the invaders Tuesday and annex the National League title.

CAPLIN GETS 5-10 YEARS, FLAYED BY JUDGE IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 10 (AP)—Hymie Caplin, who has managed five world champion boxers, was sentenced today to from five to ten years in Sing Sing Prison on his conviction of grand larceny. He was accused of being the financial backer of a ring of card sharps.

Kings County Judge Peter J. Brancato told Caplin that the sentence was severe and that he was showing no mercy because "we like a good fighter regardless of color, creed and race, but we look down on a cheat who hits below the belt."

He gave the following sentences to other members of the ring who pleaded guilty:

Jenny Rubin, 2½ to five years; Hymie Gold, 2½ to 10 years; Abe Blumenson, one year and three months to 2½ years; Mrs. Gussie Blumenson, one year, suspended because of her child. Three other defendants are to be sentenced later.

Judge Brancato said some of the card ring's victims had lost from $50,000 to $75,000 at one sitting. The ring was alleged to have taken $2,000,000 from the unwary in the last ten years.

Among the fighters managed by Caplin was Lew Jenkins, lightweight champion. He also managed Al Singer, former lightweight champion, and others.

Indians Ousted From Top Spot

NEW HAVEN, Ct., March 10 (AP)—The New Haven Eagles knocked the Springfield Indians out of second place in the Eastern division of the American Hockey League and moved into that spot themselves by whipping the Indians, 3 to 1.

Every Eagle goal was scored while Springfield had a man in the penalty box.

Paul Haynes scored New Haven's first goal half way through the initial period, but Freddy Thurrier evened the game in the second period on a short shot after taking a pass from Fred Hunt.

Gildea Subs Snowshoes For Cleats

A woeful request to swap shoulder pads and helmets for snowshoes and shovels greeted potential gridiron stars at Everett High School today upon their return from the week-end vacation.

It was posted on the bulletin board by a disgruntled Denny Gildea, who had envisioned perfect spring practice weather from now until June, only to have his dream rudely shattered by Saturday's blizzard.

Denny has had 50 boys in uniform for the past week, knocking over practice dummies, charging into heavy line blocks and racing through stiff calisthenic drills.

TO USE "T" FORMATION

Coach Gildea has been installing the intricate Notre Dame system with the again famous "T" formation, which needs plenty of power and finesse. Gildea has this in his backfield led by Co-Capt. Rudy Romboli. Rudy is a hard-hitting fullback who weighs 232 pounds, yet is the fastest sprinter on the squad.

This system and the tricky formations which were being rehearsed before the storm at the Everett Stadium also needs a triple threat of exceptional ability. The coaches, Gildea, Eddie Melanson and Waldo Dragone are a mite happy when they mention Ray Brickley, whom they claim is just such a threat.

Brickley, of course, a member of the famous Brickley of Harvard family, is a stream lined six footer weighing 165 pounds and fleet of foot. Although he was not a starter last season he saw plenty of action, and will only be 17 next fall.

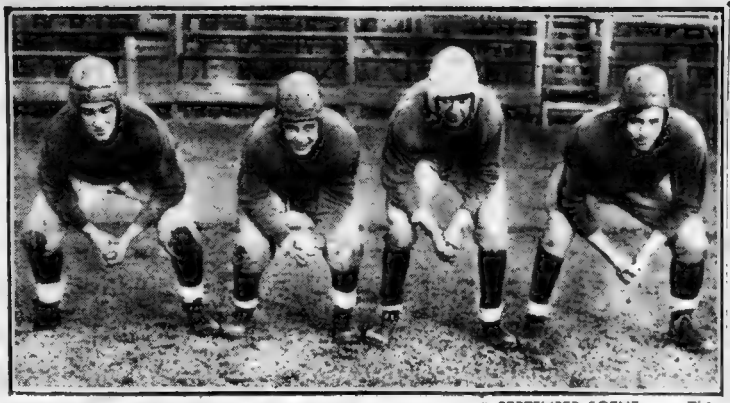
Bill Flynn and Dick Connolly are a couple of more good looking backs and they round out the Everett backfield. Of course as usual there are plenty of other good backs on the team that will see plenty of action, but this quartet seems destined to carry Everett to great heights next season. The boys seem to be working harder and it may be due to the fact that Gildea nearly left Everett for Ohio.

McKINNON AT CENTER

Carl McKinnon, co-captain will center the forward line. Charles Pagonini and Hod Rocco will play important roles at the guard spots. The tackles slots seem to be set for Al DiLoreto and Frank Ornstein and they will be flanked by Mike Yancey and Chandler Tallient. A couple of replacements who have been showing plenty are Frank Di Rosa and Bill Conley, both backs.

BIETELA OUT FRONT

IRONWOOD, Mich., March 10 (AP)—Roy Bietela of Ishpeming, Mich., won first place in Class A of an invitational ski meet here when he scored 149.2 points in leaps of 184 and 200 feet.



SMILE MISSING TODAY . . . When Coach Denny Gildea of Everett High and his co-captains, Rudie Romboli (left) and Carl McKinnon were photographed Friday all was serene. Today the three have a different view on life and the surroundings as well. Denny is thinking seriously of outfitting each boy with a shovel to clean up the Everett High field.

SEPTEMBER SCENE . . . This is the way Everett High's backfield for 1941 will shape up when the boys answer the whistle early next fall. Left to right they are Bill Conley, Leon Piazza, Bill Flynn and Ray Brickley.

C.Y.O. Meet Continues Wednesday

Having hurdled its first play-off obstacle, Blessed Sacrament of Jamaica Plain will try to stay on the victory road that may lead to its second straight Suffolk Deanery senior championship of the C. Y. O., basketball league when it tackles St. Mary's of Dedham, Wednesday night.

SANTONE FANS GA-GA OVER BEES' INFIELD

By BILL GRIMES

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 10—Because of the weather on the Coast, Babe Dahlgren didn't have an opportunity to get in shape before coming to camp . . . He weighed 210 pounds on joining the Bees but he's shedding weight rapidly . . . At one time, Babe Dahlgren was such a coffee addict that he drank on an average of twelve cups per day . . . The doctors ordered him to drink Postum and he does very faithfully.

• • •

Pete McKenna, who has been going to training camps with Boston clubs for more than 30 years, made a flying trip to El Paso . . . He made the 1270 mile trip to visit a sick relative.

• • •

Duffy Lewis is beginning to feel like himself . . . He had been bothered by a bad stomach and was well under weight . . . Now, he's the "Duff" of old . . . Casey Stengel hasn't been any too well this spring . . . He hasn't been able to sleep despite the fact that he sits around the hotel lobby until after midnight and is one of the first in the dining room in the morning.

• • •

Eddie Miller puts on a show for the natives every day . . . They're read about Miller's sensational shortstopping but they never realized that he was as nifty with that glove.

The San Antonio baseball fans are going strong for the entire Bees' infield, which defensively at least is the best in either league.

We wouldn't be the least bit surprised if Bama Rowell, Eddie Miller and Sibby Sisti hit .300 this season . . . Rowell can't miss, having accidents, while Miller and Sisti have it in them to wind up in the elite class.

• • •

Earl Averill and Max West are rated as the leading contenders for the center field berth but they'd better keep their eye on Buster Bray, up from Evansville, where he hit for .336 last season.

• • •

Bray is not a powerhouse with the bat but neither should he be classified as a "banjo" hitter . . . He has poled out some long drives here to all fields . . . Defensively he has an edge on brothers West and Averill, for he's one of the best fly chasers that's come up in some time . . . Frank McElyea, due to his size, looks awkward but he is a pretty good first baseman . . . Right now he's a little on the scatter arm side . . . But George Kelly has taken him under his wing and it is almost a foregone conclusion that "Mac" will improve his throwing . . . It was George Kelly who taught Max West to throw . . . Slapsie Maxie was a shot-putter when he joined the Bees two years ago at Bradenton.

Al Javery is ready to take his turn on the mound . . . The lanky Worcesterite really bore down while the Bees were working out at Alamo Stadium and he's in great shape . . . Casey Stengel expects much of Javery this season.

Casey Stengel places the blame for Phil Masi's batting slump of a year ago on himself . . . He feels that he gave Masi too many instructions and that Phil lost confidence in himself . . . So Phil is on his own this spring and, although it is too early to make any worthwhile predictions, looks like he has recovered his batting eye.

One of the best stories that has cropped up concerns Bama Rowell and Eddie Miller . . . It seems that Bama booted one in a close game last season and Miller hopped on him . . . Bama's reply was "If I can't field any better than you do after I've been playing as long as you have, I'll quit" . . . That stopped Eddie dead in his tracks.

McElroy is working in an airplane factory on the Coast . . . Babe Dahlgren admits that the weather is MOST unusual this spring . . . He said that he was very lucky to get through southern California because of the floods, which were very bad at Glendale, which is Casey Stengel's home town.

THE TRIP HOME from Florida . . . A late start . . . What with closing up the Royal Palm Club at Miami with the Sheldon Fairbanks and Barney Killions and a 6 a. m. breakfast at the Fairbanks' winter home at Palm Island.

A cheerio to Harry Voiler and his wife, Louise, at the Palm Court Hotel, and then on to the Indian River Hotel at Rockledge in the heart of the fruit, fishing and hunting country . . . Bellboy told me I could shoot wild turkeys a mile from the hotel if I wished, but I was tired and felt more like going to bed.

Seizing morning newspapers early to get latest war news and to see how Range Dust, the Fairbanks horse, came out . . . Anyhow Range Dust ran a good race even though my bet on him ended up in left field.

Riding for miles between orange groves with magnificent river to my left, and then a beach, and beyond the beach the ocean . . . Gas attendant telling me that people in the Indian River country lived to be 100 years old and liked it.

Arriving at Charleston, South Carolina, for dinner . . . Police patrolling roads between Savannah and Charleston in an effort to cut down heavy auto toll in vicinity of Army camps under construction . . . Workmen passing on two-lane highway in numerous head-on crashes . . . Six deaths in a week and everyone horrified.

Hundreds of sailors and soldiers on leave in Charleston . . . Young kids . . . Many of them away from home for the first time . . . Service boys mostly in groups seeking recreation . . . Few youngsters standing on street corners alone . . . Lonesome looking . . . Why not more places in the cities and towns to entertain service boys on leave?

A sport stopover at Edenton, N. C. . . . A visit to historical St. Paul's Episcopal Church built in 1736 where Lenten services were being held . . . In the churchyard are the graves of Colonial Governors Charles Eden and Henderson Walker, a memorial to Joseph Hewes, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and the home of James Iredell, Justice of the United States Supreme Court from 1790 through 1799, and attorney-general of North Carolina during the stormy days of the American Revolution.

A visit to the church green at the suggestion of Mrs. Julian Wood, one of the leading inhabitants of the town, to see the spot marking what North Carolina claims was the first tea party . . . A copper teapot has been placed on the grounds of what was the home of Mrs. Elizabeth King . . . On October 25, 1774, the ladies of Edenton gathered at the King home, had tea and protested the taxes England had placed on tea . . . Mrs. James Wood and Mrs. Julian Wood taking me for a sightseeing trip of the historic places in Edenton . . . Mr. Burton, one of the town's energetic business men, advising me to return to Edenton for a longer visit.

Millions for Coast Guard Aviation

ON TO ELIZABETH, N. C., and a visit to the Coast Guard aviation station . . . Built at a cost of millions of dollars . . . With planes patrolling the Coast and laughing at the wild waves off Cape Hatteras . . . A lookout for the Navy and for the soldiers that will soon be stationed at Camp Davis in North Carolina.

Through the rain to Norfolk, and over the ferry to Cape Charles . . . With wild winds kicking up an angry sea that made the ferryboat toss . . . On through the rain, then sleet and later snow to Dover, Del. . . . Skidding cars in snowbanks . . . One car completely turned over, and its occupants rushed to a hospital . . . Occasionally taking time out to think of the palm trees and sun of Florida . . . Snow making it difficult for me to see through my windshield . . . Big trucks crowding to the edge of the road.

The clerk in the Richardson Hotel at Dover, Del., as gracious as a millionaire in his Park Avenue home . . . Autoists coming in out of the storm and glad to get indoors.

Sitting around the lobby while the wind howled outside, and the snow and sleet beat against the windows of the hotel . . . Tuning in on my portable radio to get Sam Taub's story of the Soose-Vigh bout in the New York Garden . . . Making a few mental bets on Soose on account of his superior speed and boxing ability, and he didn't disappoint . . . Up at 8 a. m. and tuning in for weather reports . . . More snow ahead . . . Buddy Clark on in a transcribed record . . . Boston boy from the West End House who made good.

New York Shovels Itself Out

ACROSS THE FERRY at Newcastle, and against a barrage of rain and sleet . . . Over bumpy roads behind heavy trucks and skidding autos . . . Slowing down each time I saw another car buried in a snow drift . . . Hundreds of service boys going from town to town in autos, and helping each other when one of their cars whirled around and landed off the road.

Through the Holland Tunnel, and giving a sigh of relief . . . Always feel when I reach New York I am home . . . There is the Edison Hotel and Jim Flood, a quick train ride to Boston, a six-hour auto trip under normal conditions of one hour and fifteen minutes by air when planes are flying . . . Just a taxi hop.

Along the Henry Hudson Parkway, then the Country Way, into the Hutchinson River Parkway, the Merritt Parkway, and greetings from Clerk Donovan at the Taft Hotel in New Haven . . . Clerk Donovan used to be at the Parker House, and he took care of me in Parker House style.

A telephone call to the Bostons in Jamaica Plain, and news that Teresa has prepared a turkey dinner for Sunday . . . A real Thanksgiving for all of us . . . Sure, the palm trees and the tropics are swell . . . But I'm glad to be home . . . I am still very much Boston, and insist that New England is the greatest place in the world in which to live . . . I'll be seeing you on Washington street.

JUDGE LANDIS BACKS WATER ON DRAFT RULE

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 10 (AP) — Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis disclosed he had rescinded a ruling which prevented major league clubs from sending purchased players back to the minors without first obtaining waivers.

Commissioner Landis said he hadn't changed his mind about the rule, but rescinded it "to correct something I overlooked"—the fact that many clubs had purchased players with the expectation that they could be optioned out for three years without waivers.

PROTECT PLAYERS

The commissioner said he would recommend that legislation embodying the same provision as his recent order be adopted at the baseball rules meeting in St. Petersburg March 17, to govern future operations and give purchased players the same protection as drafted players.

Landis explained that he sought by his ruling to correct an injusice to young purchased players who could be farmed out to the minors for three years without getting a chance with another major league club, whereas a drafted player could not be sent back down the ladder without waivers being obtained from other major league clubs, giving him a chance to remain in the big leagues.

BREADON PLEASED

However, the commissioner said he realized that because many club owners had purchased players since last season with the expectation that they could option them to the minors without waivers, enforcement of the waiver requirement would work a hardship at the present and he would drop it for the time being.

At St. Petersburg, President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals expressed gratification at Landis' action. He said the Cardinals and other clubs had made arrangements with the expectation that the old rule would be in effect, and that the waiver requirement would have worked a hardship.

Fine Mungo; Sent Home By Dodgers

The exhibition baseball season was in full swing yesterday with nine games involving big league teams on the limbering-up program, but the play was overshadowed by a sudden banishment of Pitcher Van Lingle Mungo from the good graces of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Mungo, who had confidently expected to win at least 20 games for the Dodgers this year, was fined $200 for breaking training rules at the Dodgers' Havana training camp, and then handed a ticket to Macon, Ga.

It appeared that, if Mungo wants to get back on the Dodgers' roster, he will first have to "prove himself" by working out with the Montreal club of the International League, now training at Macon.

FELL OFF WAGON

Mungo's behavior has been above reproach in recent months and the Dodgers had almost forgotten he was once their chief problem child. Saturday night, however, Mungo apparently "fell off the wagon" in great style.

In fact, it was reported that Mungo's spirits were so high and his perceptive powers so low when he entered the Hotel Nacional bar that he offered to buy a drink for Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers. Durocher declined, frigidly, it was reported.

Hugh Mulcahy Anxious to Hurl For Army Team

CAMP EDWARDS, March 10 (INS) — First major league ball player to enter the Army as a draftee, Hugh Mulcahy, ace pitcher of the Philadelphia Phillies, appeared to be taking his change of fortune in stride.

Hughie said his draft call came only a few days after he signed his 1941 contract which, he said, was for $12,500.

"I hope to get a chance to play ball for the Army," he said. "When I get out of the service in a year, it will be the start of the baseball season and I will be in the best of condition."

Hank Greenberg A Bit Optimistic

LAKELAND, Fla., March 10 (AP)—Big Hank Greenberg arrived in the Detroit Tigers' training camp and said he looked forward to "another good year."

But whether the American League's "most valuable" player will spend that year in the outfield or in Uncle Sam's army is a question yet to be decided by selective service officials. Greenberg holds a low order number, and draft officials in Detroit have classified him as immediately available for service.

B. C. BATTERY CANDIDATES ANSWER CALL

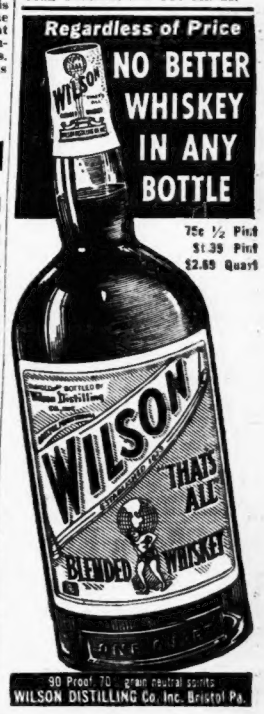
Coach Fred Maguire will issue his initial call for Boston College battery candidates this afternoon immediately after classes. The Eagles will probably work in the gymnasium of the Edison school in Brighton.

Maguire, former Chicago Cubs, New York Giants and Boston Braves second sacker will be starting his third year as mentor of Boston College baseball when he assembles his Eagles this afternoon.

Dick Ferriter, lanky curve ball pitcher from Brighton and Bob Sliney, veteran receiver from Pepperell will be the only letter winners reporting this afternoon.

Missing will be such former standouts as Fred Leahy, pitcher, from Somerville; Jim "Bullet" Byrne of Newton and former Capt. Frank "Bunzo" Burns from Roslindale, catchers.

Maguire expects more than a dozen pitching aspirants to report this afternoon. Top names among the twirlers are Ronnie Corbett, Frank Doherty and footballers John Yauckoes and Joe Manzo.



Barrett of Lowell Has What It Takes To Stay With Sox

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 10—Greater Boston boys haven't had much luck with the Red Sox in recent years. There was Skinny Graham of Somerville winding up at Baltimore; there was Ted Olson of Quincy, who never could quite fit into Joe Cronin's picture puzzle; there was Art Mahan of Somerville running into the Foxx barrier at first base, and there is Ulysses Lupien of Harvard in the same fix as Mahan.

What does the future hold for Johnny Barrett of Lowell, speedy young outfielder down here trying to crash the major league picture for the first time?

Let's introduce him first.

Johnny, 23 now and a left-handed hitter, captained the Lowell high school team in '33. He played semi-pro ball with the Dionnes Independents (Lupien was on the same club) for three years until he was called to the attention of Hughey Duffy of the Red Sox.

Good old Hughey took a peek at him out at the Fenway one morning, liked his looks and got him a job with the Kennedy's team in the Park League.

SENT TO MANSFIELD, O.

One year of apprenticeship there, and the Sox sent him to their Mansfield, O., farm in the Ohio State League (Class D). Johnny burned up that league, batting .378 and leading the league in stolen bases with 53.

He was promoted to Hazelton (Class A) in the Eastern League. He hit .310 there and proceeded to lead that league in stolen bases with 50.

The Hazelton franchise was shifted to Scranton in '39, and Johnny moved over with the franchise. His hitting fell off to .280 but Scranton didn't mind because they had Lupien at first base hitting .321, and Mickey Harris, Frank Dasso and Alex Mustaikis pitching them to a pennant and victory in the playoffs.

Nor, for the first time in his pro career, did Barrett lead the league in stolen bases. That honor fell to the Bees' "Bama" Rowell, then with Hartford, who had 30 to Johnny's 28.

But the Sox thought so well of him that last spring they promoted him to Louisville, which club in turn optioned him to San Francisco to replace Dom DiMaggio, who had been bought by the Red Sox.

HIT FOR .285

So last year was Johnn's first in Double A, and though he again fell under the .300 mark (.285 in 178 games), he did regain his old base-stealing leadership, beating out Jo-Jo-White (the old Detroit boy) of Seattle for the honors in the last week of play.

Jo-Jo was leading 35 to 29 going into that last week, when Lefty O'Doul told Johnny to go any time he saw fit. Johnny went 11 times, stole 11 bases and clinched the honors with 40.

The kid really can fly.

Let him tell you about his hitting.

"I used to hit straight away," he recalled, "but when I reached Frisco, Lefty O'Doul told me I was sacrificing too much power that way, and began teaching me to pull the ball to right field.

"'You're in front of the ball all the way then,' Lefty used to say, 'and you'll ride for longer distances.'

"The change upset my hitting some, but I did get more power behind my drives because I got 12 home runs and led the league in triples with 22.

O'DOUL HELPED DIMAGGIO

"Down here, I already can feel the benefit of O'Doul's teaching because I am hitting the ball further than I ever did.

"O'Doul made a pull hitter out of Joe DiMaggio, and he made one of Dom, and I understand they're both doing all right. So, if he makes another DiMaggio out of me, I won't beef too much even though I don't get on base as often as I used to."

Johnny's a husky, bright-eyed chap, a typical Greater Boston product. He's as alert mentally as he is physically.

HOLDOUT? NOT TED—Ted Williams, left and Onwer Tom Yawkey seem pleasant enough as they stage a signing scene at Sarasota. Ted was said to be a holdout who would make the Sox officials grow gray, but he came to camp, signed without argument, and was ready for work.

Charity Day Ends Meet at Santa Anita

LOS ANGELES, March 10 (AP)—The bettors who have been tossing an average of nearly $700,000 a day into Santa Anita race track's parimutuel machine will have to find something else to do with their money.

Santa Anita's seventh season ends today.

Officially, it closed Saturday as Charles S. Howard's Mioland redeemed himself for defeat in the $100,000 handicap by running a brilliant field into the ground in the $50,000 San Juan Capistrano.

Today's extra eight-race program was for charity. Track executives estimated some $275,000 would be realized for Shrine, Jewish, Catholic and Elks funds.

Saturday's card, featured by Mioland's new track record of 2:29 1-5 for a mile and one-half, lured $1,698,153 from the pockets of 55,000 patrons.

It brought the season's betting total to $32,815,269—an average of $698,197 per day for the 47-day meeting.

That tops last year's average by more than $50,000 a day. Still standing as the record season's total is the $36,650,590 wagered during the 56-day meeting of 1938.

Mioland, which as even-money favorite for the handicap a week ago was beaten a half-length by Bay View, a 58-1 shot, carried 120 pounds to his new record Saturday.

Miller's Bat Downs Browns

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 10 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns succumbed to Boston power as Casey Stengel's Bees pounded out an 11 to 5 victory with a 14-hit attack led by Eddie Miller.

Miller showed no partiality in collecting four hits and a walk in five times at bat against the three Brownie hurlers, Bob Muncrief, Emil Bildilli and Maurice Newlin.

CASEY CONSIDERS GREMP UNDERSTUDY FOR DAHLGREN

By BILL GRIMES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 10—"From what I saw of him last season and from what I've learned about him from Rudie Hulswitt," declared Manager Stengel today, "I'd say this boy Gremp has a chance.

"Well, what about him as a hitter?" we inquired.

"That boy can really hit," was Casey's comeback. "He has power and is smart up at that plate. On three occasions, I saw him go to right field on curve balls and that was enough to convince that he's more or less a 'natural' with that willow in his hands."

Although he has been "out" since he graduated from Normandy High School of St. Louis in June, 1936, Buddy Gremp will not celebrate his 22d birthday until the 5th of August. He attracted the attention of the Cardinals while playing sandlot ball in St. Louis.

JOINED CHAIN GANG

After graduated from high school, Buddy joined the Chain Gang and was shipped to the Albany, Ga., farm where he played until the close of the following season.

Gremp was only 16 years of age when he broke into pro ball. He was a very frail kid. Between the heat of Georgia and the poor meals which befall all players who are in Class D leagues in the Southland, Buddy had trouble and didn't register as a hitter until 1939.

In the meantime, after a season and a half with Albany, he was transferred to Union Springs in the Alabama State league in the spring of 1938 and the next season found him at Columbus, Ga., where he started to click with the bat.

After hitting .333 for Columbus, Ga., Gremp was shipped to Hamilton, Ont., in the Pony League. The Cards had taken over that franchise and wanted to strengthen the club. Buddy was a sensation at Hamilton. He was rated as the best fielding second baseman in the league and he was hitting .375 when he injured his knee in a collision.

Instead of allowing him to rest after his injury, Gremp was shifted to first base. There were only about a dozen players on the Hamilton roster. So Bud couldn't get any relief. For six weeks, Gremp played on one leg and his batting average dropped to .350.

MADE FREE AGENT

Apparently the Cardinals keep a close check on the physical condition of their farm hands for word was sent to the main office that Gremp's injured knee would eventually force him out of baseball. Before the close of the season, Gremp received word that he was to be declared a free agent.

During the off season, Eddie Onslow wrote Gremp and offered him a contract and Buddy joined the Bees organizaiton. He was sent to York in the International League and under Rudie Hulswitt developed into a sensational first baseman. He hit .293 for York and batted in 81 runs.

Tresh Kayoed, Dizzy Dean Hammered

HOLLYWOOD, March 10 (AP)—The ball game was a rousing success for everyone except young Mike Tresh of the Chicago White Sox and, perhaps, Mr. Jerome H. Dean.

Tresh, catching for the Major League All Stars in Sunday's contest with the Coast League players, was hit accidentally in the head by Pepper Martin's bat and knocked semi-cold.

Helped from the field, Manager Jimmy Dykes' No. 1 backstop was taken to a hospital for six stitches in his scalp.

The throng of 15,000 which packed Hollywood's ball park saw Dizzy Dean put his famous "nothing ball" on public display for the first time this season. It was hit harder than Tresh was.

The Coast Leaguers won the game, 6 to 4, as each side collected nine hits.

Diz was touched for two walks, three hits and three runs.

ENTRY FEE MUST ACCOMPANY ENTRY BLANK

New England's pinboys, the lads who quietly and efficiently work the pits, will have their own championship during the American-Record grand candlepin bowling tournament which will hold forth at the Huntington Club from March 29 to April 12.

Jack Stafford, manager of the Huntington Club, returned from a month's vacation at Hot Springs, Ark., all pepped up with ideas to make this year's American-Record tournament better than ever.

Stafford, champion of the pinboys' cause, suggested that they be given a chance to compete and has donated handsome prizes for the winners.

The event proved so successful last year that it will now become a permanent fixture and this year the kids will get the exact same prizes as champions in the amateur divisions.

There is many a pin-boy capable of rolling scores as high as the crack professionals. In fact the pin-boy of today is the top-flight bowler of tomorrow and the alley owner as well.

The pin-boy champion will proudly wear a diamond-studded gold medal emblematic of the 1941 American-Record title.

Entries for the tournament close two weeks from tomorrow and as a result it becomes increasingly important that all those intending to participate file their entries immediately.

The official entry blank appears here today. It would help the committee to formulate its tournament plans if these blanks were mailed as soon as possible.

Hornets Score First Victory on Red Ice

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 10 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Hornets won their first victory of the season on Providence ice, defeating the Rhode Island Reds 4-1.

Art Giroux opened the scoring by giving Providence a one-point lead in the second minute of the second period, but the Hornets buzzed back with three tallies before the bell

Boston Skeeters Relinquish Title

FLORHAM PARK, N. J., March 10 (AP)—The Nassau Trapshooting Club of Mineola, N. Y., nosed out the Loantaka Arrows by one bird to win the Middle Atlantic five-man team skeet shooting championship at the Loantaka Skeet Club.

Hilltop Skeet Club of Boston, winner last year, did not defend its title, although several of its members fired with other clubs.

Avoid Aging 14 Years in 4

Says John E. Warner

This young man has a fine head of hair and doesn't feel that he will ever be bald. Yet, his scalp is laden with dandruff, itches constantly, and he loses a great deal of hair each day. Right now a short period of the pleasant, low-cost, scientific treatment used by John E. Warner and Associates would get rid of his dandruff, check the hair-fall and normalize his scalp. He could keep this fine head of hair.

A year later the hair has receded at the temples, and our young man is worrying about it. He douses his head with cure-all lotions, and his scalp condition is growing worse. A free private consultation with John E. Warner would tell him that he could save and improve the hair which he still has.

Three years later, it is too late to have a good head of hair but not too late to save and improve the hair that remains, through prompt treatment, by John E. Warner and Associates. The Warner method of treatment is effective because of years of research, study and experience.

Four years later, it is too late. his appearance is permanently marred, a serious handicap to anyone. A youthful appearance is necessary these days to success in the social and business worlds. Statistics show that 85% of all baldness can be prevented if properly treated in time; but once you are bald you can never hope to regrow hair (except in rare cases of alopecia areata). The Warner offices are conveniently located at 515 Washington Street, near the corner of West Street (opposite R. H. White's). Suite 710-15. Phone Hub. 1705. Hours 10 a. m. to 8 p. m. daily, Saturdays to 6 p. m. There is no charge or obligation for a private scalp examination and consultation. Fees for treatment are very moderate. There is a separate dept. for women. Adv.
